

Mother, Five Children Perish in Valatie Fire

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

A pre-Thanksgiving Day fire early today snuffed out the lives of a Columbia County mother and five of her 13 children, in the aftermath of a kerosene stove explosion that turned their large home in Valatie into a raging inferno.

Eight other children of the dead woman, and eight members of another family who lived in a rear apartment of the two-story wood frame house—one of the oldest structures in the mill town—fled to safety scantily clad as flames raced through their home.

Volunteer firefighters from Valatie and nearby Kinderhook who fought the flames for three hours in sub-freezing weather, recovered the bodies of Mrs. Laura Hagadone, 41, and her five children hours after the fire was brought under control.

Cleverack State Police and Columbia County sheriff's men investigated the tragic fire with County Coroner Donald Tkacz of Hudson, who withheld verdicts as to the cause of the deaths pending further investigation and autopsies.

Mrs. Hagadone was missing five hours after the kerosene cooking stove erupted and burst into flames, before firemen raked through the hot debris and found the body.

Authorities said the victims of the fire probably were trapped in the first floor rooms by the dense smoke and heat of the flames and were felled before they reached windows or doors that might have opened the way to safety.

The exact location of those who died in the blaze when they were trapped could not be determined because the house collapsed into the cellar as flames burned the outer walls and the bodies of the six dropped into the flaming rubble.

Ambulances from nearby communities and physicians were dispatched to the scene, victims from the ruins. While

Rescue workers, braving the heat of the burning debris, probed the rubble after the large frame residence collapsed with a roaring sound, and found the bodies of Robert, 2, Nellie, 3, Kathy, 5, William, 6, and Kevin, 7.

Two other children of the Hagadones were rushed to Columbia Memorial Hospital in Hudson, one suffering burns and the other smoke inhalation. They were Ethel, 15, who was released after treatment, and her sister, Jane, 10, whose condition was listed as satisfactory.

Ironically, Chauncey Craft, a member of the Valatie Rescue Squad, carried one of the child Daniel Hagadone, 41, husband and father of the fire victims, was at work at the Textile By-Products Corp. plant near Hudson when the fire erupted at about 12:30 a. m. He was notified by authorities and rushed home to find the two-family house in ruins and his wife and five of his children—dead.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mazal, their three young children and three of Mazal's brothers, who occupied an apartment in the rear of the building's floor, made their way from their burning home. State police said they were not injured although they—like the Hagadones lost all of their belongings.

Before firemen arrived at the scene, the fire had gained such headway that attempts to rescue those trapped in the burning building were futile. Some firefighters, shielded by streams of water from 2½-inch hose-lines, tried to fight their way inside to save Mrs. Hagadone and the five children, but were forced back by the intensity of the heat.

It was reported that cries of some of the dying victims could be heard echoing through the noise of the crackling flames and falling timbers, but firemen were helpless and unable to help those inside.

The Valatie fire, authorities said, will be recorded as one of the most tragic in the history of Columbia County.

SAIGON (AP) — Driving through a murderous blaze of North Vietnamese machine gun and small arms fire, U.S. infantrymen late today seized the top of a strategic hill overlooking Dak To, in South Vietnam's central highlands.

AP Correspondent Peter Arnett reported from the battle scene that soldiers of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division "occupied the topmost point of the hill around 5 p.m. (4 a.m. EST) after some of the bloodiest fighting" in the two weeks of heavy combat in the area close to the Laotian and Cambodian borders.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said 17 Americans were killed and 24 wounded in the fight. The air war against North Vietnam also intensified as, for the second straight day, another target came off the Pentagon's off-limits list, U.S. Air Force pilots made the first attack of the war on a secondary airfield one mile south of the center of Hanoi and reported they cut the runway and damaged buildings.

Gen. Westmoreland is optimistic on Vietnam war and hints troop reduction within two years. President Johnson, meanwhile, tries the soft sell approach on the war. See stories Page 30.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported from Hanoi that several U.S. bombs exploded in the center of the North Vietnamese capital, one of them in the diplomatic quarter.

Arnett said the 4th Division troops took Hill 1338 after day-long fighting against an enemy battalion in bunkers on the crest of the hill.

The hill, four miles south of the Dak To airstrip is the highest point of ground in the area, overlooking all U.S. and South Vietnamese installations in the valley and a potential site for artillery emplacements to menace allied units below.

Arnett reported U.S. commanders suspected the North Vietnamese intended to deploy a rocket regiment along the crest of the hill, and the U.S. assault was ordered to thwart any such move.

A complete casualty report was not yet available, but initial field reports said seven Americans were killed and 14 were wounded in the early stages of the battle.

Enemy casualties were not known.

Schiskey Will Hear Sentence on Dec. 7

In a surprise move Thursday afternoon Alfred Wilfred Schiskey, 18, of 72 Garden Street, charged with the death of 72-year-old Herman O. Dietz at his small neighborhood grocery store last Feb. 4, entered a plea of guilty to first degree manslaughter and first degree robbery.

Charged by the grand jury with first and second degree murder and robbery in the first degree, the case had been moved for trial and selection of a jury had been scheduled for Thursday in county court before County Judge Raymond J. Mino.

The plea of guilty to manslaughter and robbery was accepted by District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca and Judge Mino set Dec. 7 at 2 p. m. for sentence.

District Attorney Torraca said he would file a statement of reasons for acceptance of the manslaughter plea.

Asked by Judge Mino, if by his plea he admitted he had caused the death of Dietz Schiskey said he did. He also said he admitted he had stolen a wallet from Dietz which allegedly contained money. Schiskey said he was entering the guilty plea of his own free will and had received no promises as to what might happen to him in the way of sentence.

Schiskey faced the court without any evidence of nervousness and answered all questions in a loud clear voice.

Rocky to Lindsay: Halt The Draft Try for 1968

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says the presidential draft movement by the New York Young Republican Club is "embarrassing" to him and he has asked Mayor John V. Lindsay to halt all activities in the governor's behalf.

Rockefeller indicates he does not appreciate efforts by Lindsay or his aides to boom him for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination.

Asked at a news conference Thursday about reports that some Lindsay aides are seeking to drum up support for him, the governor said he had spoken directly to the Republican mayor and asked him to stop any such efforts.

Rockefeller quoted Lindsay as saying he had "no control over them."

Lindsay said on a national television program last Sunday that "it would be good for my party and for the country" if Rockefeller changed his mind about not seeking the nomination.

Meanwhile Lindsay for President signs made their appearance on the streets during Lindsay's visit to Los Angeles.

After meetings with Mayor Sam W. Yorty of Los Angeles and Governor Ronald Reagan, Lindsay addressed 2,000 students at the University of Southern California.

The New York mayor told the group that the way to make changes in national policy was through the government. He praised colleague "protestors and activists," but cautioned that the way for change could only be through governmental channels.

Rockefeller said at his news conference Thursday that he had asked Lindsay to tell a key mayoral aide to "desist" from his purported activities in a draft-Rockefeller movement.

A spokesman for another group backing Rockefeller for the nomination charged the Young Republican Club movement is actually designed to win the presidential nomination for Lindsay.

The spokesman, Stephen Shelton, press secretary of the Independent Citizens for Rockefeller which claims 300 active members in New York State, said, "The draft-Rockefeller movement of the Young Republicans is an insincere movement. It is an effort to force Rockefeller into the open, to a point where the GOP conservatives can then shoot him down. At that point the moderates would fall back on Lindsay."

Miss Shelton also said in an interview that Davidoff "controls the voting" of the club, and 14 of the 30 board members are officials of the Lindsay administration.

William H. Nickerson, president of the Young Republican Club, said the charge that the members are working for Lindsay's nomination "is of such a nature that it cannot be dignified with a reply."

Lindsay has said he is not at all interested in the nomination.

Ex-Delegates Polled

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New Yorkers who served as delegates to the last Republican National Convention strongly prefer a Rockefeller-Reagan ticket for 1968, a survey showed today.

Of the 43 ex-delegates who participated in The Associated Press survey, 33 named Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller as their first choice for the presidential nomination.

Nixon Runnerup In the state, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon was the runnerup, with eight first-place votes.

The other two first-place selections went to Michigan's Gov. George Romney—in an interesting sidelight of the poll. The two Romney adherents were Rockefeller and U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, who led the New York delegation in its unsuccessful fight to block the nomination of Barry M. Goldwater in 1964.

However, a poll on a nationwide scale puts Richard M. Nixon on top as the favorite for the presidential nomination and California's Governor Ronald Reagan emerges as an overwhelming choice to be the vice presidential nominee.

Although the majority of delegates participating in the national survey said they favor a Nixon-Reagan ticket, a combination of Rockefeller and Reagan received a substantial number of votes and ran second as the strongest potential GOP team.

Response to the questionnaires sent to the 1964 delegates throughout the nation was 44 per cent.

Rockefeller has been pressing hard for nomination of Romney while denying any White House ambitions of his own. Javits, also backing Romney publicly, has been mentioned with decreasing frequency as a possible running mate for Romney.

Despite the efforts of Rockefeller and Javits, Romney drew no support among rank-and-file former delegates who responded to the AP's request for opinions on the developing race for the next GOP nomination.

Fast Rising

California's Gov. Ronald Reagan, regarded as a fast-rising potential nominee, attracted no first-place mentions at all in the survey. But 34 participants named him for vice president—32 pairing him with Rockefeller and 2 with Nixon.

Illinois Sen. Charles Percy also drew a blank on presidential selections, but five chose him for the vice presidential nomination. Two saw him as the best running mate for Rockefeller and three mated him with Nixon.

The survey was conducted by sending questionnaires to all 92 (Con. on Page 6, Col. 7)

Joe Now Taking On Gov. Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — An aide to Gov. Ronald Reagan of California used persuasion or connivance to obtain the now-celebrated White House message at the National Governors Conference aboard the cruising SS Independence, Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick, D-N.Y., charged Thursday.

Resnick demanded a congressional investigation and accused Reagan, a Republican, of questionable behavior.

The message, signed by presidential assistant Marvin Watson, outlined tactics to be used in dealing with Republican governors in an effort to obtain a conference endorsement of U.S. policy in the Vietnam war. Republicans ultimately blocked action on the policy measure.

Reagan said he received the telegram through accident and luck as the Independence cruised toward the Virgin Islands on Oct. 18. The message was addressed to former Texas Gov. Price Daniel, a presidential liaison man with the governors.

Resnick said Lyn Nofziger,

The congressman, who did not disclose his source, said Nofziger read the White House message and "thereafter either connived with or persuaded chief radio operator Charles Berger to make a Xerox copy of the privileged White House message." Berger later was suspended from his duties by the ship's owners.

Resnick said Reagan distributed copies of the message in violation of the Federal Communications Act. He said the act prohibits divulgence or publication of intercepted interstate or foreign communications.

All U. S. Could Ask

Thieu and Ky Could Provide Key to Good Democracy

This is the last of a series dealing with war and the prospects of peace in Vietnam.

By BOB CONSIDINE
Last of 5 Articles

SAIGON — All the U.S. sacrifice in blood and treasure will have been in vain if a good government does not rise from the smoke of the war in South Vietnam.

American bombers could level North Vietnam, the navy could send all of the enemy's shipping to the bottom, and the allies could scatter the VC to the four winds. But if the elected government of Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, his vice president, Air Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, and the Assembly does not win the loyalty as well as the respect of the people, we've lost.

If disenchanted once more, the people of South Vietnam would react as they have before: Unite in insurgency or draw the traditional curtain between themselves and the central government. Both reactions would make it easier for a Communist power or powers to impose discipline upon them in exchange for goods and services. And we would then feel compelled to dispatch men and billions to re-fight a war presumably won.

Chosen Risk
We have chosen to take this risk. Moreover, we have forfeited our chances of getting a good government, one that will be strong enough to stand on its own sandals and protect itself when we withdraw all but our "military presence" such as we have maintained in South Korea (50,000) for 14 years.

We have improved the historic odds against the development of a democracy in this mandarin-oriented land by many positive acts.

—We have proved to the satisfaction of a large proportion of the loose-knit nation's 14,000,000 peoples that we have come halfway across the earth as friends and protectors, not as colonists (as were the French) or enslavers (as would be the communists).

—Our servicemen have shown themselves to be most effective ambassadors. Operating at the rice-roots level, they have befriended millions of peasants and thus inadvertently have spread the gospel of democracy through a land that never knew it.

—Our bombing of the north, which the South Vietnamese identify as the source of all their woe, has increased respect for us and the things for which we stand.

—Our AID brigades fill stomachs, build bridges, ports and roads, construct housing and train countless thousands to take over and operate the machinery of progress that we'll leave behind.

Filling Shoes
In short, we are leaving our shoes here and giving these people every reason to want to fill them.

Our present "Country Team" — Gen. William C. Westmoreland and Ambassadors Ellsworth Bunker, Eugene M. Locke and Robert W. Komer — believe Thieu and Ky are honest patriots determined to do what is best for their country. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge feels the same way. It is an unprecedented vote of confidence in the leadership of a country hardly more renowned for clean government than the other nations of southeast Asia.

Thieu, having met the press, now must meet the people. He is not nearly as well known as his running mate, Ky. Thieu is not as colorful as Ky, who sometimes appears in public in what is called his "Captain Midnight" outfit: Tight fitting black trousers and "Eisenhower" jacket, and a lavender neckerchief. Neither is a particularly effective speaker, but Thieu is the less fluent of the two.

He is also the more powerful, within the military directorate which has run the country more firmly than any group since that of Ngo Dinh Diem, who was killed along with his brother-adviser, strongman Ngo Dinh Nhu four years ago. Thieu is the only senior officer of the coup that dislodged Diem. The others — Minh, Don Thi, Khanh, Dinh, Kuan and Co. — have been stripped of power or thrown out of the country.

Thieu, converted to Catholicism from Buddhism, thus becoming a member of a communion that represents only 10 per cent of the people. It does not necessarily follow, however, that he will be religiously opposed by 90 per cent of the people. Buddhism is broken into many sects and no sects at all. The Confucianists, who are in great numbers, are not political activists. Ky is Buddhist.

80 Per Cent
It is significant that better than 80 per cent of all eligible voters — of whom there were perhaps 6,000,000 — cast their ballots for the Thieu-Ky ticket and ten rival tickets in the recent elections. There was a similarly vigorous turnout a year ago for the constituent Assembly elections, and Washington has taken heart from these two demonstrations. The miracle of self-government may not be as impossible as critics of President Johnson's Vietnamese policy would contend.

The frostiness that appears to have developed between Thieu and Ky has been overstressed, U.S. officials state, hopefully. There is reason behind their statement. The two men have worked together in harmony for a long time. Ky may have declared himself a candidate for the presidency when Thieu showed no interest in running. Whatever, he withdrew when Thieu and the other generals of the directorate requested him to. And he obediently accepted second place on the ticket.

Atmosphere Lacking
Neither man was raised in a democratic atmosphere. As Ky once told the Hearst task force, it is an ideology foreign to most Vietnamese, a people whose history is marked by centuries of occupation by the Chinese, a century of colonial rule by the French, and a succession of "emperors," mandarins, war lords and dictators.

"We must learn how to operate democratically," he said. "We must study. What we will eventually have may not be a democracy just like yours, but that is natural. We are different from you."

In answer to a set of written questions, particularly one which asked whether he felt a democratic form of government would speed or hinder the war effort, Ky recently replied:

"During the past two years, although our government functions were not determined by a democratic constitution, we have tried our best to direct the war efforts with the spirit of a democratic government. Therefore, the advent of representative government will not hinder our war efforts any more than our guiding principles have done in the past. I even expect that with the sanction of popular elections, things will be somewhat easier."

Prof. Richard M. Scammon, research director of the Government Affairs Institute, assessed the recent elections in these terms:

Elections Free
"It seems to us, based on our relatively limited observation, to be a reasonably competent free election. Not going into all the intricacies of the nominating procedure, the voters seemed to have the freedom to vote, challenged only by the VC."

Scammon brushed aside the question of a reporter who said in effect that the election was crooked because he personally had seen a woman vote twice. "It would be very difficult to fix an election of this size," he said. "You're not dealing here with a total of 5,000 or 10,000 votes, where if you stole maybe a hundred you might be able to swing the election. You're dealing with an election by millions of people. You'd have to steal so many votes that you would need the collusion of thousands of people, and an over activity by so many would have been clearly noticeable."

Many meanings have been read into the election outcome. The Thieu-Ky ticket attracted only 35 per cent of the vote, or 1,600,000 votes. Thieu had predicted that he would draw at least 40 per cent and privately expected more. Ky, in answer to a question submitted by this reporter, answered, "You have witnessed how tough the campaign is. I think we will have a very tight race — nevertheless I believe that our ticket will win by a comfortable margin."

It was a comfortable margin, some 817,000 votes more than the ticket that ran second. What disturbed some observers was the nature of the No. 2 ticket. It was headed by Truong Dinh Dzu, a Saigon lawyer who ran on a peace-at-any-price platform. Dzu and seven other defeated presidential hopefuls have appealed to the Constituent Assembly to throw out the September 3 returns and order another election. There is no chance that the Assembly will do so.

In the opinion of the men who know the situation, the Thieu-Ky government is one with which we can live and work and trust. That is all we ask.

All U. S. Could Ask

Thieu and Ky Could Provide Key to Good Democracy

By BOB CONSIDINE

Last of 5 Articles

SAIGON — All the U.S. sacrifice in blood and treasure will have been in vain if a good government does not rise from the smoke of the war in South Vietnam.

American bombers could level North Vietnam, the navy could send all of the enemy's shipping to the bottom, and the allies could scatter the VC to the four winds. But if the elected government of Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, his vice president, Air Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, and the Assembly does not win the loyalty as well as the respect of the people, we've lost.

If disenchanted once more, the people of South Vietnam would react as they have before: Unite in insurgency or draw the traditional curtain between themselves and the central government. Both reactions would make it easier for a Communist power or powers to impose discipline upon them in exchange for goods and services. And we would then feel compelled to dispatch men and billions to re-fight a war presumably won.

Chosen Risk
We have chosen to take this risk. Moreover, we have forfeited our chances of getting a good government, one that will be strong enough to stand on its own sandals and protect itself when we withdraw all but our "military presence" such as we have maintained in South Korea (50,000) for 14 years.

We have improved the historic odds against the development of a democracy in this mandarin-oriented land by many positive acts.

—We have proved to the satisfaction of a large proportion of the loose-knit nation's 14,000,000 peoples that we have come halfway across the earth as friends and protectors, not as colonists (as were the French) or enslavers (as would be the communists).

—Our servicemen have shown themselves to be most effective ambassadors. Operating at the rice-roots level, they have befriended millions of peasants and thus inadvertently have spread the gospel of democracy through a land that never knew it.

—Our bombing of the north, which the South Vietnamese identify as the source of all their woe, has increased respect for us and the things for which we stand.

—Our AID brigades fill stomachs, build bridges, ports and roads, construct housing and train counties thousands to take over and operate the machinery of progress that we'll leave behind.

Filling Shoes

In short, we are leaving our shoes here and giving these people every reason to want to fill them.

Our present "Country Team"—Gen. William C. Westmoreland and Ambassadors Ellsworth Bunker, Eugene M. Locke and Robert W. Komer—believe Thieu and Ky are honest patriots determined to do what is best for their country. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge feels the same way. It is an unprecedented vote of confidence in the leadership of a country hardly more renowned for clean government than the other nations of southeast Asia.

Thieu, having met the press, now must meet the people. He is not nearly as well known as his running mate, Ky. Thieu is not as colorful as Ky, who sometimes appears in public in what is called his "Captain Midnight" outfit: Tight fitting black trousers and "Eisenhower" jacket, and a lavender necktie. Neither is a particularly effective speaker, but Thieu is the less fluent of the two.

He is also the more powerful, within the military directorate which has run the country more firmly than any group since that of Ngo Dinh Diem, who was killed along with his brother-adviser, strongman Ngo Dinh Nhu four years ago. Thieu is the only senior officer of the coup that dislodged Diem. The others—Minh, Don Thi, Khanh, Dinh, Kuan and Co.—have been stripped of power or thrown out of the country.

Thieu, converted to Catholicism from Buddhism, thus becoming a member of a communion that represents only 10 per cent of the people. It does not necessarily follow, however, that he will be religiously opposed by 90 per cent of the people. Buddhism is broken here into many sects and no sects at all. The Confucianists, who are in great numbers, are not political activists. Ky is Buddhist.

80 Per Cent

It is significant that better than 80 per cent of all eligible voters — of whom there were perhaps 6,000,000 — cast their ballots for the Thieu-Ky ticket and ten rival tickets in the recent elections. There was a similarly vigorous turnout a year ago for the constituent Assembly elections, and Washington has taken heart from these two demonstrations. Many meanings have been read into the election outcome. The Thieu-Ky ticket attracted only 35 per cent of the vote, another election. There is no or 1,600,000 votes. Thieu had predicted that he would draw at least 40 per cent and privately expected more. Ky, in answer to a question submitted by this reporter, answered, "You have witnessed how tough the campaign is. I think we

Glove Imports Capture Market, Domestic Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imported gloves are making a tremendous impact on the domestic market, the secretary of the National Association of Glove Manufacturers says.

James H. Casey Jr., of Gloversville, N.Y., told the federal tariff commission Thursday that American producers should be assured of a fair share of the domestic market. Orderly marketing and import quotas should be established if necessary, he said.

Casey said imports of women's and children's gloves increased since 1960 from nearly 3 million pairs to 8.4 million pairs.

Imports of knitted gloves now account for 80 per cent of the domestic market, he said, and American production declined 33 per cent in the last seven years.

The commission is investigating the effect of imports on the U.S. textile industry. It has been requested to report to President Johnson by Jan. 15, 1968.

Casey said low-cost producing nations are providing tremendous price competition in gloves. Excessive imports, he said, also have caused a great dislocation of labor in the United States.

Most of the competition, he said, comes from imports from Italy, but has broadened to those from Japan, Taiwan, South Korea and Hong Kong.

Albert A. Caretta of Chicago, general counsel of the Work Gloves Manufacturers Association, called for the freezing of some percentage of the total domestic market available to imports. This would allow the domestic industry to survive, and permit foreign producers to participate in any future growth of the domestic market, he said.

Other spokesmen said that imports also have hurt the knit and woolen apparel industry, and the American Schiffli lace and embroidery industry.

International control was necessary, they said, to protect the jobs of workers.

Approximately 30 members of the Police Department, headed by Police Chief Robert F. Murphy and the entire board of police commissioners, were present to honor Patrolman Barringer and other members of the department. Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan presented the various awards and called upon members of Kiwanis to stand solidly behind the police department.

Gilbert Gray of Doctor's Ambulance was given the Citizens Citation Award for his service during the recovery of a child drowned in the Rondout Creek in September of this year.

Other awards presented by Mayor Garraghan included: 13 years service: Detective Sergeant Charles McCullough, Detectives John Crespi, Floyd Krom, William Slover, Sergeant Bernard Fowler, and Officers Anthony Turk, Joseph Kivlan.

The Silver Merit Award was presented to Detective Leonard Ellsworth, while departmental Citations were given to Sergeant Harry Short, Detective Wilmont Hall, Officers Leon Fitzgerald, Douglas Longto, Frank Kennelly, George Deyo and Howard Kelly.

Officers Curtis Van Demark and Raymond Wells received the Silver Merit Award, while the Detective Division received a department citation "for the exceptional record of accomplishment during the year under the reorganizational efforts of Detective Sergeant Charles McCullough."

The program was arranged through the Kiwanis Program Chairman Harry Hines, with Police Commissioner Henry P. Eighmey in charge of introductions.

Word has reached Mount St. L. I., where his mother still resides. After his ordination in 1941 he did post graduate work at Catholic University, Washington where he earned his MA and PhD in Sociology. He taught for 10 years in Redemptorist institutions, was an Army chaplain in World War II and the Korean conflict. Appointed rector of Holy Redeemer College, Washington, D. C., for six years, he then came as rector of Mount St. Alphonsus, Esopus, where he has served for the past three years. He will be in Rome as consultant general for at least six years.

Father Lerhinan is the only American on the Council. The others are natives of Germany, Italy, French Canada, Ecuador and India. The new Redemptorist General is a native of Brazil.

Mideast Accord In U. N. Remote

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Prospects of Security Council agreement on a Middle East peace formula appeared remote today as members studied three rival plans. None of them were believed acceptable to both the Arabs and the Israelis.

The 15-nation council was moving toward a showdown on the proposals, but some delegates predicted that the bailout may not come until next week. Some members were awaiting instructions from their governments.

Britain came in late Thursday with a compromise draft. Both the Israelis and the Egyptians withheld comment on the British plan until they heard from home, but there were reports that the Russians gave the formula a cool reception.

The United States and India, Mali and Nigeria had already put in rival plans, neither of which was acceptable to both sides.

Lord Caradon introduced the British resolution after warning the council that the alternative to effective action on the Middle East was "too terrible to contemplate."

The British resolution calls for Israeli withdrawal "from territories occupied in the recent conflict" when Israel seized hundreds of square miles of territory from Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

It also affirms the need for an end to "all claims or states of belligerency," a reference to the state of war the Arabs have maintained against Israel since the Jewish state was born 19 years ago.

Like the other two resolutions, the British draft would send a U.N. representative to the Middle East "to promote and assist efforts to achieve a peaceful and accepted settlement."

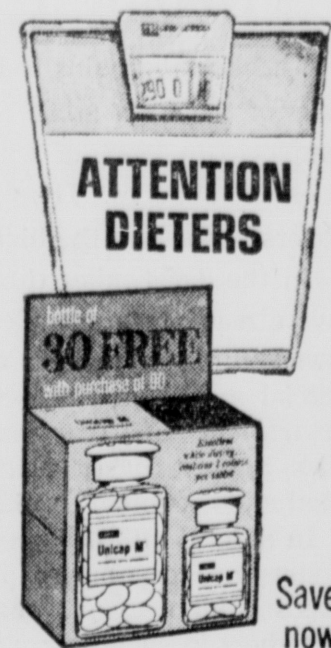

Foreign Ministers Abba Eban of Israel and Mahmoud Riad of Egypt both restated their positions after Caradon spoke and both made clear they would stand by them.

Riad said Egypt was "absolutely firm" in its demand for complete and unconditional Israeli withdrawal from all captured lands. Eban said his government would insist on "secure and recognized boundaries."

The United States has also called for Israeli withdrawal but supports Israel's demand for secure boundaries. The Indian proposal, which is backed by the Soviet Union and the Arab states, demands Israeli withdrawal "from all the territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict."

Suffers Injuries

William E. Biese, 27, of Woodstock suffered minor leg injuries early today when his pickup truck left the road and struck a fence, sheriff deputies report. According to officials, Biese was traveling along Route 212 near Woodstock when he dozed. The truck ran off the highway and into several trees and a fence, deputies noted. Deputy James Milesky investigated.

Board Adopts Overtime Pay Resolution in Lackluster Meet

A resolution calling for payment of overtime to an employee to bring the processing of vouchers for physical handicapped children and the filing of state reports up to date, proved to be the only controversial item on the agenda of the Board of Supervisors Thursday.

Chairman Peter J. Savago, New Paltz Republican offered the resolution. First Ward Republican Supervisor James Rapp objected saying the board was setting a bad precedent which could lead to more requests for overtime. Rapp moved to table the resolution for further study.

Spoke on Motion

William West, Woodstock Republican, and Third Ward Supervisor John C. Sangaline (R), spoke on the motion. West said a study of the overtime situation should be made and a good "hard head" study of policy for all departments be made. Sangaline remarked that highway employees should be considered for time and a half pay for snow removal work. Republican Supervisor Roy J. Weber, Marlborough, suggested a "pool" of typists for use by all departments might solve the situation of departmental overwork.

On the motion to table for study, the Rapp motion was lost 23 to 5 and the original resolution of Chairman Savago was adopted 24 to 4.

The overtime involved is for an employee in the Board of Supervisor office, where year-end work has backed up.

On motion of Majority Leader Douglas Dye, (R), Town of Kingston, the board adopted a resolution levying taxes and assessments required for the purpose of annual budgets of the various towns of the county.

Resolutions by Supervisor Charles E. Penney (R), Shawangunk, assessing and levying sewer and sidewalk taxes in the Walkkill districts were approved.

Levy Approved

A resolution by Supervisor Joseph Martorana, Plattekill Republican, to levy against the properties of the New York, New Haven Railroad in Town of Plattekill the sum of $4,089.68, was approved unanimously.

Consent was granted Harold Pickney of the Health Department, permission to attend a State Health Department conference at Batavia on December 15.

On motion of Republican Supervisor Lester S. Davis, Olive, the following equalization table was approved:

City of Kingston 37, Denning 10, Esopus 18, Gardiner 12, Hardenbergh 27, Hurley 22, Kingston Town 20, Lloyd 21, Marlborough 23, Marlboro 19, New Paltz 13, Olive 14 (up one point), Plattekill 6, Rochester 28, Rosendale 13, Saugerties 14, Shandaken 30, Shawangunk 20, Ulster 14, Wawarsing 16 (down one point), Woodstock 13.

Distribution of mortgage tax money was approved on motion of Supervisor Franklin Kelder (R), Rochester.

Reporting for the Legislative and Rules Committee, Supervisor Martorana recommended the board adopt Local Law No. 2, 1967, the so called Taylor Law relative to establishment of a County Employee Public

Rifton Man Hurt in Crash

A man was injured yesterday when the auto he was driving collided at the intersection of Pine Grove Avenue and Susan Street with a truck, police said.

Rushed to Benedictine Hospital were Samuel Martinez of Rifton. He suffered a concussion, broken ribs and cut hips in the mishap. His condition is reported satisfactory, officials said.

The truck's operator, William T. Goff of Monroe, escaped injury. He is a driver for A.P.A. Transport Corp. of North Bergen, N. J.

According to police, the truck was headed south on Susan Street. Martinez was traveling along Pine Grove Avenue, police disclosed, when the two vehicles collided at the intersection.

Glove Imports Capture Market, Domestic Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imported gloves are making a tremendous impact on the domestic market, the secretary of the National Association of Glove Manufacturers says.

James H. Casey Jr. of Gloversville, N.Y., told the federal tariff commission Thursday that American producers should be assured of a fair share of the domestic market. Orderly marketing and import quotas should be established if necessary, he said.

Casey said imports of women's and children's gloves increased since 1960 from nearly 3 million pairs to 8.4 million pairs.

Imports of knitted gloves now account for 80 per cent of the domestic market, he said, and American production declined 33 per cent in the last seven years.

The commission is investigating the effect of imports on the U.S. textile industry. It has been requested to report to President Johnson by Jan. 15, 1968.

Casey said low-cost producing nations are providing tremendous price competition in gloves. Excessive imports, he said, also have caused a great dislocation of labor in the United States.

Most of the competition, he said, comes from imports from Italy, but has broadened to those from Japan, Taiwan, South Korea and Hong Kong.

Albert A. Caretta of Chicago, general counsel of the Work Gloves Manufacturers Association, called for the freezing of some percentage of the total domestic market available to imports. This would allow the domestic industry to survive, and permit foreign producers to participate in any future growth of the domestic market, he said.

Other spokesmen said that imports also have hurt the knit and woolen apparel industry, and the American Schiffli lace and embroidery industry.

International control was necessary, they said, to protect the jobs of workers.

Barringer was honored at the annual police recognition luncheon of the Kingston Kiwanis Club, receiving a plaque from the Kiwanis and the Gold Merit award from the police department.

Others Honored

Approximately 30 members of the Police Department, headed by Police Chief Robert F. Murphy and the entire board of police commissioners, were present to honor Patrolman Barringer and other members of the department. Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan presented the various awards and called upon members of Kiwanis to stand solidly behind the police department.

Gilbert Gray of Doctor's Ambulance was given the Citizens Citation Award for his service during the recovery of a child drowned in the Rondout Creek in September of this year.

Other awards presented by Mayor Garrahan included: 15 years service: Detective Sergeant Charles McCullough, Detectives John Crespin, Floyd Krom, William Slover, Sergeant Bernard Fowler, and Officers Anthony Turk, Joseph Kivlan.

The Silver Merit Award was presented to Detective Leonard Ellsworth, while departmental citations were given to Sergeant Harry Short, Detective Wilmont Hall, Officers Leon Fitzgerald, Douglas Longto, Frank Kennelly, George Deyo and Howard Kelly.

Officers Curtis Van Demark and Raymond Wells received the Silver Merit Award, while Officers Raymond Wells, Anthony Turk, Edwin Coughlin, Thomas Coffey, Richard Spaulding were the recipients of the departmental Citation Award.

Officer Ira Hadsel also received the Silver Merit Award, while the Detective Division received a department citation "for the exceptional record of accomplishment during the year under the reorganizational efforts of Detective Sergeant Charles McCullough."

The program was arranged through the Kiwanis Program Chairman Harry Hines, with Police Commissioner Henry P. Eighmey in charge of introductions.

Alphonsus Rector Gets Post in Rome

Word has reached Mount St. L. I., where his mother still resides. After his ordination in 1941 he did post graduate work at Catholic University, Washington where he earned his MA and PhD in Sociology. He has been elected to the office of Consul General by the OMA and has been teaching for 10 years in Redemptorist institutions, was an Army chaplain in World War II and the Korean conflict. Appointed rector of Holy Redeemer College, Washington, D. C., for six years, he then came as rector of Mount St. Alphonsus, Esopus, where he has served for the past three years. He will be in Rome as consul general for at least six years.

Father Lerhinan is the only American on the Council. The others are natives of Germany, Italy, French Canada, Ecuador and India. The new Redemptorist General is a native of Brazil.

Mideast Accord In U. N. Remote

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Prospects of Security Council agreement on a Middle East peace formula appeared remote today as members studied three rival plans. None of them were believed acceptable to both the Arabs and the Israelis.

The 15-nation council was moving toward a showdown on the proposals, but some delegates predicted that the ballot may not come until next week. Some members were awaiting instructions from their governments.

Britain came in late Thursday with a compromise draft. Both the Israelis and the Egyptians withheld comment on the British plan until they heard from home, but there were reports that the Russians gave the formula a cool reception.

The United States and India, Mali and Nigeria had already put in rival plans, neither of which was acceptable to both sides.

Lord Caradon introduced the British resolution after warning the council that the alternative to effective action on the Middle East was "too terrible to contemplate."

The British resolution calls for Israeli withdrawal "from territories occupied in the recent conflict" when Israel seized hundreds of square miles of territory from Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

It also affirms the need for an end to "all claims or states of belligerency," a reference to the state of war the Arabs have maintained against Israel since the Jewish state was born 19 years ago.

Like the other two resolutions, the British draft would send a U.N. representative to the Middle East "to promote and assist efforts to achieve a peaceful and accepted settlement."

Foreign Ministers Abba Eban of Israel and Mahmoud Riad of Egypt both restated their positions after Caradon spoke and both made clear they would stand by them.

Riad said Egypt was "absolutely firm" in its demand for complete and unconditional Israeli withdrawal from all captured lands. Eban said his government would insist on "secure and recognized boundaries."

The United States has also called for Israeli withdrawal but supports Israel's demand for secure boundaries. The Indian proposal, which is backed by the Soviet Union and the Arab states, demands Israeli withdrawal "from all the territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict."

Suffers Injuries

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 17, 1967

Urban Expressways

There yet remains to be built 16,400 miles of highways of the 41,000-mile federal highway system to be completed in 1972, of which 2,296 miles will traverse cities and suburbs. Therein lies some of the most controversial parts of the highway system.

In the 3,454 miles through cities and suburbs that have already been completed, the concrete layers that flowed through residential neighborhoods and commercial areas have caused so much trouble that the Department of Transportation is now cautioning cities against hasty planning that ignores esthetic, social and economic considerations.

In several cities, homeowners and other interested persons are organizing political pressure to reroute proposed highways through cities and suburbs, or to alter them in such a way as to reduce their impact on the neighborhood. Plans that would enhance historical, economic, social and visual functions are being pushed against those of the road builders who may disregard local interests.

Still to be solved are problems in New York, Cleveland, Baltimore, Boston-Cambridge and New Orleans among others. In Baltimore, an urban concept team was organized not only to screen and decorate roads that were assumed to be basically ugly, but to treat the expressway as a great work of civic art, as the Romans did with their aqueducts. It attacks all functions of the expressway in the city and suburbs and as such is highly desirable in solving local problems of these expressways.

Huge, Tiny Aircraft

The successful first launching of the Saturn 5, the largest and most powerful rocket ever tested, finished with a parachute drop 700 miles northwest of Hawaii. It encouraged the Apollo team to hope for a safe manned landing on the moon before 1970.

The 83-foot in diameter parachute that brought Saturn 5 safely to rest on the ocean was the last of three that lowered it into the hands of the waiting recovering team. We had had so many manned landings in the previous Gemini program, that most of us forgot how the unmanned rockets were brought back to earth.

There was another experiment on the same day at Lakehurst, N. J., that showed the role of parachutes in lowering a plane to earth without crashing or hurting anyone. Wings were blown off at 4,600 feet and out popped three parachutes—one each to take the two wings away and one to bring the fuselage down. The pilot jumped out two-thirds of the way down and floated down by a separate parachute. Both plane and pilot landed safely.

The parachute that brought the plane down was 64 feet in diameter. Its success in bringing a plane down slowly to an easy landing points to the development of parachutes big enough and strong enough to lower commercial passenger planes to safe landings. That would make flying even safer than it is today.

Poor Pay More

People in slum areas pay more for what they buy than those in better neighborhoods.

This has long been a complaint of the poor. Now the commissioner of labor statistics, Arthur M. Ross, has confirmed it in the Nov. 13 issue of U.S. News & World Report.

He had staff members compare prices of food, rents and other items between low-income and high-income areas in six communities.

Food prices were definitely higher, apparently because there are less supermarkets and large independent stores in poverty areas. These stores usually have lower prices than the corner grocery stores in poor neighborhoods.

A New York City survey, for example, found the poor paying as much as 15 per cent more for food than those in middle-income areas.

Price doesn't tell the whole story. Stores in the slums, according to Ross, are apt to have poorer quality food and less services.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics also found significant differences in rent. Slum dwellers get less in terms of space and other facilities for the money spent. As for other goods and services, results vary. Washing machines and television sets seem to cost more in low-income areas, clothing or drugs prices are about the same, and some services like haircuts are less.

Although the U.S. study did not find this, other private surveys claim the poor are also taken advantage of by stores which raise prices at the time of the month when they know welfare checks and food stamps are due.

That's what's known as kicking a man when he's down.

Birdman of Washington

David Lawrence Says

Spending of Federal Money and Politics

WASHINGTON — Could history repeat itself? Attempts this week in the House of Representatives to try to give local city machines control of the disbursement of federal grants bear a strange resemblance to the way politics paid off in the presidential election of 1936. In that year, nine counties with the highest "relief" appropriations throughout the country contributed majorities big enough to swing the electoral votes of nine of the biggest states. These, together with only one-half of the "Solid South," provided the minimum necessary to elect FDR as President.

The controversy going on now in the House concerns a basic question—how shall the welfare programs be administered, and what part shall the city and county governments play in the spending of vast sums of federal money.

Many Republicans have been endeavoring to give community organizations authority to bypass the local governments and deal directly with federal agencies. But the Democrats have been supporting a different procedure—namely, one that would make it possible for the local governments or political machines to have a big voice in how the money is spent.

An idea of what's at stake politically can be gleaned from the fact that federal grants-in-aid in 1950 amounted to only 2.5 billion dollars, while currently such appropriations are running at an annual rate of 17 billion dollars.

Much of this money is spent locally. Hence, from a political standpoint, it is important for leaders in the major cities—where the largest portion of the funds is disbursed—to have a voice in, if not control of, the distribution. In recent years, there has been criticism because of the tendency of the federal government to bypass the state governments and deal with the municipal or county authorities. State governments have been expressing opposition to these procedures.

It has been pointed out that, during the last five sessions of Congress, more than 50 federal laws have been passed creating more than 100 separate programs which deal with various manpower problems and the development of human resources. In the federal government, the responsibility has been divided among five different cabinet officers. The states claim that the results are inefficiency, duplication, overlapping and delay. The problem is made more complex when the state governments find it necessary to "match" federal funds and yet cannot exercise authority over just how each project shall be operated.

The controversy is not likely to be settled altogether by what the House of Representatives does, because the same issues will arise in the senate when it is confronted with the action expected to be taken this week by the lower house.

Some of the projects—such as those dealing with poverty and air and water pollution—are, it is argued, only practicable when handled by the federal government without regard to established lines of jurisdiction. It is obvious that if politics had nothing to do with these appropriations, and particularly the administrative machinery, there would be greater efficiency, and perhaps large sums of money could be saved. But as long as politics is a way of life in America, the local leaders and machines want to see their particular areas treated generously with public funds, as this can play an influential part in the outcome of future elections.

With the presidential campaign only a year away, it is natural for members of congress to find themselves under pressure from local politicians who want to have the city hall or the county court house exercise the dominant and controlling role in the handling of federal funds. Neither party is united on the question because a variety of influences are exerted back home not only by state officials but by local governments.

In the background, however, is the potential impact of federal funds on the 1968 presidential and congressional elections. Ever since the days of the first "pork-barrel" project, the spending of federal money usually has had a definite relationship to vote-getting.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

TOKYO, Japan—There are lovely aspects to Japanese life. No one can make flower arrangements with the delicacy of a Japanese gardener. No one else can cook a pot of nothing and serve it steaming and appetizing. Where else can you find a roadside stand marked "Hotta Dogu"? There are 98,000,000 people jammed into a mountainous mass of islands about the size of the state of Montana, and everyone works as though he enjoys it.

Tokyo is the biggest city in the world. It is full of skyscrapers and banks, camera shops and night clubs, department stores and transistor radios, pedestrians and retired kamikaze pilots who own taxicabs. It is as modern as a mini-skirt and as old-fashioned as a kimono and wooden clogs.

We are at the Okura. Our room is 328, on the third floor. To reach the lobby, we take the elevator "up" to the fifth floor. Spoken Japanese sounds like a child spinning an old phonograph record too fast. The Japanese love pinball machines, which they call pachinko, and they are mad about baseball.

The Japanese are building the world's largest oil tankers, 225,000 tons, they have the longest overhead monorail railroad, and they are now running a train called "Hikari" (Beam of Light) that hits 160 miles an hour between here and Kyoto, 300 miles away.

The college students are mannerly, but leftist. They despise the Sato Government's friendship with the United States, and they stage parades demanding that we get out of Vietnam. The boys marry at age 27; the girls at 24. If a girl wants to be a real Japanese wife, she plays the role of favorite slave, getting on her knees and removing his shoes at the door, making jolly remarks while cooking the dinner, and never daring to ask where the hell he was until three this morning.

I tipped a waiter 200 yen for bringing breakfast—55 cents—and he thanked me for it. When he left, I found it on the table. English is a required subject in high school, and Tokyo alone boasts five English language dailies, the most newsworthy of which is Yomiuri.

Japan has the highest standard of living in Asia, and yet the average head of a family earns $140 a month. He has a TV set, a washing machine, and an electric refrigerator. Before World War II, most Japanese were short, energetic people. Since they have altered their diet of rice and fish with bread, meat and dairy products. The children are now three inches taller than their parents.

This morning, we went to see old Japan. The Hikari train, 12 aluminum cars, left Tokyo at 9:30. At 11:50, it stopped in the old capital of Kyoto, 342 miles away. There was no noise, no jiggling, just velvet seats with white napkin headrests, a cafeteria car, and a million rice paddies and mountains blurring by the windows.

Kyoto is a sacred city. It has 1,600 Buddhist temples, one of which houses 1,001 golden statues. In 1945, it was listed as a target for the atom bomb, but Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, begged Harry Truman to permit the city to live in peace. He had been there once, and had been impressed. Kyoto was erased, and Hiroshima and Nagasaki became the cities of the doomed.

We ate in a restaurant on mats. The tea ceremony is, of course, important. Powdered green tea is ladled into a bowl. Boiling water is poured over it and a bamboo whisk stirs it briskly. The tea is drunk by cradling the little cup in the left hand, then turning it slowly three revolutions with the right hand on the rim. This is accompanied by compliments about the cup. The tea should be sipped slowly, with appropriate "ahhs."

The art of conversation is slow, meditative, and designed to make the other person appear to be stunningly interesting. In the evening, we took the train back to Tokyo (300 miles in 170 minutes). In the capital, almost everyone dresses as though he had stepped out of Robert Hall's or Klein's. On the Nishi-Ginza, which is Times Square, the girls are hippie; the boys prowling the night clubs in groups of four and six; and neon lights are the brightest and most complex in the world.

There are 1,500 restaurants and 1,600 taverns in a small area. One night club is dim, and the floor show is staged on a slow elevator. If you look up in time, you see the band go by with the singing girls on their way to the upper floors and, if you watch long enough, you'll see the show pass by on the way to the lobby.

The men and women bathe together in communal baths; the best beef is fed beer and is massaged on the hoof. Pepper is called koshoo, which figures, and for a girl to yell "stop," she has to remember "Tomatte kudasai," which is much too long and easily forgotten.

Japan is also contagious. A friend of mine, Davey Jones, has been here for twelve years working for Pan-American. He tells jokes in Japanese and smiles apologetically and says to me: "It loses something in the translation."

Drew Pearson Says

Big Test for Pan American Progress Takes Place Today

WASHINGTON — Today (Nov. 17) the Pan American Union, now better known as the Organization of American States, elects the man who will pilot it for the next ten years. This is the most important international job in the Western Hemisphere, comparable to U. Thant's job as Secretary General of the United Nations.

Unfortunately, the job has been subject to a lot of petty politics in the past. Personalities have been put ahead of public welfare. There has also been suspicion that the United States wanted to dominate the OAS.

This time, however, the 20 Pan American republics have a chance to put one of the top leaders of the hemisphere in the post of Secretary General. He is Galo Plaza, ex-President of Ecuador, and the man who has worked for the United Nations in handling the crisis in Lebanon when President Eisenhower landed troops, the Cyprus crisis over which the Greeks and Turks came close to war, and the Congo crisis when the U.N. sent in a police force. Galo Plaza has also undertaken an important mission to Haiti to try to head off the explosion in that unhappy country certain to come when President Duvalier exits.

Last year, Drew Pearson, who has spent part of his newspaper career specializing in Latin American affairs, flew to Ecuador, talked to ex-President Plaza, urged him to become a candidate for Secretary General of the OAS. Plaza was reluctant. He considered it important to remain in Quito to help restore Ecuadorian democracy and stability.

Returning to Washington, Pearson urged the State Department and other Pan American diplomats to back Galo Plaza as the best man to pilot the OAS. Ambassador Sol Linowitz, the dynamic Xerox executive whom LBJ persuaded to become U.S. ambassador to the OAS, readily concurred. So did some other diplomats, though many are pledged to vote for their own favorite son on the first ballot.

Plaza's chief handicap is that he was born in New York and is considered the State Department's candidate. What most people don't know is that it is an enterprising American newspaperman, rather than the State Department, who is really promoting him.

The showdown comes today. It will be interesting to see whether personal politics or Pan American progress wins out in steering the future course of the Western Hemisphere.

Ex-Bachelor Senator's Wife

Sen. Warren Magnuson, is famous for being both a crusader for the consumer and a great persuader. He doesn't orate. But he does persuade his colleagues to line up behind his bills. His displeasure with a Commerce Committee vote on a smoking measure caused winning opponents to withdraw and compromise on his terms. Opponents of auto safety also withdrew before his mingled persuasion and wrath.

Long a bachelor, Magnuson finally persuaded beautiful Jermaine Peralta to love, honor and obey him "until death do us part."

Recently the Senator and his lady were driving; she, happily smoking a cigarette; he, lecturing her on the evils thereof.

"Didn't you pay any attention to our hearings?" asked the Senator from Washington. "Surely you know how hazardous smoking is." Jermaine turned to her lord and master, giving him a full look under deep-fringed eyelashes.

"Why don't you fasten your seat belt?" she asked. Magnuson did.

Knocking Out China?

It probably won't be admitted officially, but the Joint Chiefs have just completed a new set of plans for knocking out the Chinese nuclear works deep in the interior. These are strictly contingency plans, of course, which would not be used unless the Chinese attacked the United States first.

The plans were formulated after it became known last summer that China had developed limited missiles. In September, therefore, high-ranking officers from the Joint Chiefs' technical staff traveled to the Far East on a secret mission to assemble the latest intelligence on China's nuclear complex and its vulnerability. From this information, the plans for attack have now been updated.

It is no particular secret that China could be easily knocked out of the nuclear race in case of open warfare between the two countries. No doubt this has a powerful restraining influence upon Red Chinese leaders. They have issued public taunts that Uncle Sam is a paper tiger, but nevertheless have taken care not to twist the tiger's tail.

However, the behavior of Mao Tse-tung is unpredictable. He appears to have turned China at times into a massive atomic asylum which has caused Pentagon planners to wonder whether the Chinese might take a foolish, suicidal, military gamble.

As a result, Secretary of Defense McNamara ordered construction of a limited anti-ballistic missile system, which could knock down the intercontinental missiles the Chinese are expected to develop in the 1970s. In addition the Joint Chiefs prepared plans for a possible, irrational Chinese move which might come before the 1970s.

Most authorities don't expect such a move. But the Pentagon's policy is to hope for the best and prepare for the worst.

Resnick Will Give New Primary Law Brisk Workout

By CHARLES DUMAS

Albany, N. Y. (AP) — It looks as though New York State's new direct-primary law is going to get a brisk workout from the Democrats in next year's U. S. Senate derby.

One Democrat already has declared himself a candidate for his party's nomination—to oppose Republican Jacob K. Javits—and at least two more are expected to jump in.

Under the old system, they would have to fight it out in a state convention, lining up delegates or party bosses who control delegates, and that would be that.

But, under the new law, every hopeful can take his case directly to the enrolled voters of his party in a statewide primary election.

Politicians who opposed dumping the hallowed old convention system argued that the direct-primary plan would give an advantage to wealthy men—those with the personal resources to finance lavish campaigns.

Good Test for Law

As it is taking shape, next year's Democratic contest could provide a good test of that argument.

U. S. Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick, the first to declare his candidacy, is a self-made millionaire, who hasn't been bashful about spending money in two razor-dazzle congressional campaigns.

At this stage, Resnick's opposition is most likely to come from New York's former Mayor Robert F. Wagner and from Morris Abram, a New York lawyer being touted as a potential political star.

Neither Wagner nor Abram could be described as impoverished, but neither has Resnick's kind of money. They would have to have outside help to finance major campaigns, with lots of TV and all the trimmings.

The same would be true, to an even greater degree, of such other off-mentioned hopefuls as U. S. Reps. Samuel S. Stratton of Amsterdam and Otis G. Pike of Riverhead, Long Island. Here's how the new law will work.

Sometime between March 26 and April 2, the political parties' state committees will meet to nominate candidates for the Senate, by a simple majority vote.

Any runner-up who polls at least 25 per cent of the committee vote may be listed au-tomatically on the primary election ballot, if he chooses.

Other candidates may obtain a place on the primary ballot by collecting the signatures of at least 10,000 party members on a nominating petition. They must have at least 50 signatures from each of 49 counties—any 49 counties.

Primary Election 18

The primary election itself is held on the third Tuesday in June, this year on June 18. There is a possibility, of course, that various hopefuls for the Democratic nomination will agree to abide by the committee's decision, thus avoiding a divisive primary fight. But that's unlikely, in view of the party's continuing history of internal warfare.

As for Javits, he, too, must face the prospect of a primary challenge. No contestant has emerged yet, but there's plenty of time.

Under the old convention system, Javits surely could have won renomination hands down. No rivals need have bothered to apply.

But the new law presents a tempting opportunity for would-be rivals with a will—and the means—to make a fight of it.

Percy Expects Bombing Pause

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN

Copyright, 1967, Chicago Daily News Service
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Sen. Charles H. Percy is convinced that another pause in the bombing of North Vietnam is ahead.

The freshman Republican from Illinois has confided to friends that he would be very surprised if there is not one or more pauses in the bombing between now and January.

He has not indicated on what he bases this prediction, but as one of the leading contenders for the 1968 GOP presidential nomination he keeps in close touch with the Vietnam situation.

There has been speculation from other sources that President Johnson might order a halt in the bombing during the Christmas holidays. The administration, however, is keeping close-mouthed about its plans while, at the same time, some of its key spokesmen question the value of bombing pauses.

For example, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, back from Saigon for conferences with the President, says past pauses have not brought any reciprocity from the enemy. He thinks any future pause should depend on whether or not there were an indication it would bring a response from Hanoi.

Percy, on the other hand, suggests that the administration might have better success in getting negotiations started if it changed the style of its approach when it announced a bombing halt.

He feels there should be talk about what would be negotiable; what chance the Viet Cong would have to advance through the political process instead of simply being exterminated.

The other side, he says, should be made to see that negotiations would be to its advantage.

He favors periodic pauses in the bombing, particularly because of their effect on world opinion. But, to forestall an effort by the other side to push supplies across the line during the pause, he would not announce it in advance.

The senator is stressing the need for a negotiated settlement—with the United States agreeing to negotiate with the Viet Cong—because he does not believe total victory is attainable in the war.

As he looks ahead to the 1968 campaign, Percy is conscious of the problem posed on Vietnam policy by Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen, the senior Republican from Illinois. Dirksen is a problem to Percy and other Republicans who disagree with Mr. Johnson's handling of Vietnam because he persists in supporting the President.

The confrontation between Dirksen can be persuaded to critics of LBJ will come when the party gets down to writing its Vietnam plank at the convention in Miami Beach next August.

Percy appears to hope that Dirksen can be persuaded to join the dissenters. If not, he anticipates that the old warrior will be forced to give in by the sheer weight of opposing views held by key Republicans from congress, together with the 26 Republican governors.

Dirksen will have "a great deal of help" in putting together the Vietnam plank, Percy notes.

Mincing no words, he is telling fellow Republicans that if they do not do anything except to offer to support the administration, they deserve to lose next year's election.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 17, 1967

Urban Expressways

There yet remains to be built 16,400 miles of highways of the 41,000-mile federal highway system to be completed in 1972, of which 2,296 miles will traverse cities and suburbs. Therein lies some of the most controversial parts of the highway system.

In the 3,454 miles through cities and suburbs that have already been completed, the concrete layers that flowed through residential neighborhoods and commercial areas have caused so much trouble that the Department of Transportation is now cautioning cities against hasty planning that ignores esthetic, social and economic considerations.

In several cities, homeowners and other interested persons are organizing political pressure to reroute proposed highways through cities and suburbs, or to alter them in such a way as to reduce their impact on the neighborhood. Plans that would enhance historical, economic, social and visual functions are being pushed against those of the road builders who may disregard local interests.

Still to be solved are problems in New York, Cleveland, Baltimore, Boston-Cambridge and New Orleans among others. In Baltimore, an urban concept team was organized not only to screen and decorate roads that were assumed to be basically ugly, but to treat the expressway as a great work of civic art, as the Romans did with their aqueducts. It attacks all functions of the expressway in the city and suburbs and as such is highly desirable in solving local problems of these expressways.

Huge, Tiny Aircraft

The successful first launching of the Saturn 5, the largest and most powerful rocket ever tested, finished with a parachute drop 700 miles northwest of Hawaii. It encouraged the Apollo team to hope for a safe manned landing on the moon before 1970.

The 83-foot in diameter parachute that brought Saturn 5 safely to rest on the ocean was the last of three that lowered it into the hands of the waiting recovering team. We had had so many manned landings in the previous Gemini program, that most of us forgot how the unmanned rockets were brought back to earth.

There was another experiment on the same day at Lakehurst, N. J., that showed the role of parachutes in lowering a plane to earth without crashing or hurting anyone. Wings were blown off at 4,600 feet and out popped three parachutes—one each to take the two wings away and one to bring the fuselage down. The pilot jumped out two-thirds of the way down and floated down by a separate parachute. Both plane and pilot landed safely.

The parachute that brought the plane down was 64 feet in diameter. Its success in bringing a plane down slowly to an easy landing points to the development of parachutes big enough and strong enough to lower commercial passenger planes to safe landings. That would make flying even safer than it is today.

Poor Pay More

People in slum areas pay more for what they buy than those in better neighborhoods.

This has long been a complaint of the poor. Now the commissioner of labor statistics, Arthur M. Ross, has confirmed it in the Nov. 13 issue of U.S. News & World Report.

He had staff members compare prices of food, rents and other items between low-income and high-income areas in six communities.

Food prices were definitely higher, apparently because there are less supermarkets and large independent stores in poverty areas. These stores usually have lower prices than the corner grocery stores in poor neighborhoods.

A New York City survey, for example, found the poor paying as much as 15 per cent more for food than those in middle-income areas.

Price doesn't tell the whole story. Stores in the slums, according to Ross, are apt to have poorer quality food and less services.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics also found significant differences in rent. Slum dwellers get less in terms of space and other facilities for the money spent.

As for other goods and services, results vary. Washing machines and television sets seem to cost more in low-income areas, clothing or drugs prices are about the same, and some services like haircuts are less.

Although the U.S. study did not find this, other private surveys claim the poor are also taken advantage of by stores which raise prices at the time of the month when they know welfare checks and food stamps are due.

That's what's known as kicking a man when he's down.

David Lawrence Says Spending of Federal Money and Politics

WASHINGTON — Could history repeat itself? Attempts this week in the House of Representatives to try to give local city machines control of the disbursement of federal grants bear a strange resemblance to the way politics paid off in the presidential election of 1936. In that year, nine counties with the highest "relief" appropriations throughout the country contributed majorities big enough to swing the electoral votes of nine of the biggest states. These, together with only one-half of the "Solid South," provided the minimum necessary to elect FDR as President.

The controversy going on now in the House concerns a basic question—how shall the welfare programs be administered, and what part shall the city and county governments play in the spending of vast sums of federal money?

Many Republicans have been endeavoring to give community organizations authority to bypass the local governments and deal directly with federal agencies. But the Democrats have been supporting a different procedure — namely, one that would make it possible for the local governments or political machines to have a big voice in how the money is spent.

An idea of what's at stake politically can be gleaned from the fact that federal grants-in-aid in 1950 amounted to only 2.5 billion dollars, while currently such appropriations are running at an annual rate of 17 billion dollars.

Much of this money is spent locally. Hence, from a political standpoint, it is important for leaders in the major cities—where the largest portion of the funds is disbursed—to have a voice in, if not control of, the distribution. In recent years, there has been criticism because of the tendency of the federal government to bypass the state governments and deal with the municipal and county authorities. State governments have been expressing opposition to these procedures.

It has been pointed out that, during the last five sessions of Congress, more than 50 federal laws have been passed creating more than 100 separate programs which deal with various manpower problems and the development of human resources. In the federal government the responsibility has been divided among five different cabinet officers. The states claim that the results are inefficiency, duplication, overlapping and delay. The problem is made more complex when the state governments find it necessary to "match" federal funds and yet cannot exercise authority over just how each project shall be operated.

The controversy is not likely to be settled altogether by what the House of Representatives does, because the same issues will arise in the senate when it is confronted with the action expected to be taken this week by the lower house.

Some of the projects—such as those dealing with poverty and air and water pollution—are, it is argued, only practicable when handled by the federal government without regard to established lines of jurisdiction. It is obvious that if politics had nothing to do with these appropriations, and particularly the administrative machinery, there would be greater efficiency, and perhaps large sums of money could be saved. But as long as politics is a way of life in America, the local leaders and machines want to see their particular areas treated generously with public funds, as this can play an influential part in the outcome of future elections.

With the presidential campaign only a year away, it is natural for members of congress to find themselves under pressure from local politicians who want to have the city hall or the county court house exercise the dominant and controlling role in the handling of federal funds. Neither party is united on the question because a variety of influences are exerted back home not only by state officials but by local governments.

In the background, however, is the potential impact of federal funds on the 1968 presidential and congressional elections. Ever since the days of the first "pork-barrel" project, the spending of federal money usually has had a definite relationship to vote-getting.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

TOKYO, Japan—There are lovely aspects to Japanese life. No one can make flower arrangements with the delicacy of a Japanese gardener. No one else can cook a pot of nothing and serve it steaming and appetizing. Where else can you find a roadside stand marked "Hotta Doggu"?

There are 98,000,000 people jammed into a mountainous mass of islands about the size of the state of Montana, and everyone works as though he enjoys it.

Tokyo is the biggest city in the world. It is full of skyscrapers and banks, camera shops and night clubs, department stores and transistor radios, pedestrians and retired kamikaze pilots who own taxicabs. It is as modern as a mini-skirt and as old fashioned as a kimono and wooden clogs.

We are at the Okura. Our room is 328, on the third floor. To reach the lobby, we take the elevator "up" to the fifth floor. Spoken Japanese sounds like a child spinning an old phonograph record too fast. The Japanese love pinball machines, which they call pachinko, and they are mad about baseball.

The Japanese are building the world's largest oil tankers, 225,000 tons, they have the longest overhead monorail railroad, and they are now running a train called "Hikari" (Beam of Light) that hits 160 miles an hour between here and Kyoto, 300 miles away.

The college students are madder, but leftist. They despise the Sato Government's friendship with the United States, and they stage parades demanding that we get out of Vietnam. The boys marry at age 27; the girls at 24. If a girl wants to be a real Japanese wife, she plays the role of favorite slave, getting on her knees and removing his shoes at the door, making jolly remarks while cooking the dinner, and never daring to ask where the hell he was until three this morning.

I tipped a waiter 200 yen for bringing breakfast—55 cents—and he thanked me for it. When he left, I found it on the table. English is a required subject in high school, and Tokyo alone boasts five English language dailies, the most newsworthy of which is Yomiuri.

Japan has the highest standard of living in Asia, and yet the average head of a family earns $140 a month. He has a TV set, a washing machine, and an electric refrigerator. Before World War II, most Japanese were short, energetic people. Since, they have altered their diet of rice and fish with bread, meat and dairy products. The children are now three inches taller than their parents.

This morning, we went to see old Japan. The Hikari train, 12 aluminum cars, left Tokyo at 9:30. At 11:50, it stopped in the old capital of Kyoto, 342 miles away. There was no noise, no jiggling, just velvet seats with white napkin headrests, a cafeteria car, and a million rice paddies and mountains blurring by the windows.

Kyoto is a sacred city. It has 1,600 Buddhist temples, one of which houses 1,001 golden statues. In 1945, it was listed as a target for the atom bomb, but Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, begged Harry Truman to permit the city to live in peace. He had been there once, and had been impressed. Kyoto was erased, and Hiroshima and Nagasaki became the cities of the doomed.

We ate in a restaurant on mats. The tea ceremony is, of course, important. Powdered green tea is ladled into a bowl. Boiling water is poured over it and a bamboo whisk stirs it briskly. The tea is drunk by cradling the little cup in the left hand, then turning it slowly three revolutions with the right hand on the rim. This is accompanied by compliments about the cup. The tea should be sipped slowly, with appropriate "ahhs."

The art of conversation is slow, meditative, and designed to make the other person appear to be stunningly interesting. In the evening, we took the train back to Tokyo (300 miles in 170 minutes). In the capital, almost everyone dresses as though he had stepped out of Robert Hall's or Klein's. On the Nishi-Ginza, which is Times Square, the girls are hippie; the boys prowling the night clubs in groups of four and six; and neon lights are the brightest and most complex in the world.

There are 1,500 restaurants and 1,600 taverns in a small area. One night club is dim, and the floor show is staged on a slow elevator. If you look up in time, you see the band go by with the singing girls on their way to the upper floors and, if you watch long enough, you'll see the show pass by on the way to the lobby.

The men and women bathe together in communal baths; the best beef is fed beer and is massaged on the hoof. Pepper is called kosho, which figures, and, for a girl to yell "Toppo," she has to remember "Tomatte kudasai," which is much too long and easily forgotten.

Japan is also contagious. A friend of mine, Davey Jones, has been here for twelve years working for Pan-American. He tells jokes in Japanese and smiles apologetically and says to me: "It loses something in the translation."

Drew Pearson Says Big Test for Pan American Progress Takes Place Today

WASHINGTON — Today (Nov. 17) the Pan American Union, now better known as the Organization of American States, elects the man who will pilot it for the next ten years. This is the most important international job in the Western Hemisphere, comparable to U Thant's job as Secretary General of the United Nations.

Unfortunately, the job has been subject to a lot of petty politics in the past. Personalities have been put ahead of public welfare. There has also been suspicion that the United States wanted to dominate the OAS.

This time, however, the 20 Pan American republics have a chance to put one of the top leaders of the hemisphere in the post of Secretary General. He is Galo Plaza, ex-President of Ecuador, and the man who has worked for the United Nations in handling the crisis in Lebanon when President Eisenhower landed troops, the Cyprus crisis over which the Greeks and Turks came close to war, and the Congo crisis when the U.N. sent in a police force. Galo Plaza has also undertaken an important mission to Haiti to try to head off the explosion in that unhappy country certain to come when President Duvalier exits.

Last year, Drew Pearson, who has spent part of his newspaper career specializing in Latin American affairs, flew to Ecuador, talked to ex-President Plaza, urged him to become a candidate for Secretary General of the OAS. Plaza was reluctant. He considered it important to remain in Quito to help restore Ecuadorian democracy and stability.

Returning to Washington, Pearson urged the State Department and other Pan American diplomats to back Galo Plaza as the best man to pilot the OAS. Ambassador Sol Linowitz, the dynamic Xerox executive whom LBJ persuaded to become U.S. ambassador to the OAS, readily concurred. So did some other diplomats, though many are pledged to vote for their own favorite son on the first ballot.

Plaza's chief handicap is that he was born in New York and is considered the State Department's candidate. What most people don't know is that it is an enterprising American newspaperman, rather than the State Department, who is really promoting him.

The showdown comes today. It will be interesting to see whether personal politics or Pan American progress wins out in steering the future course of the Western Hemisphere.

Ex-Bachelor Senator's Wife
Sen. Warren Magnuson, is famous for being both a crusader for the consumer and a great persuader. He doesn't orate. But he does persuade his colleagues to line up behind his bills. His displeasure with a Commerce Committee vote on a smoking measure caused winning opponents to withdraw and compromise on his terms. Opponents of auto safety also withdrew before his mingled persuasion and wrath.

Long a bachelor, Magnuson finally persuaded beautiful Jermaine Peralta to love, honor and obey him "until death do us part."

Recently the Senator and his lady were driving; she, happily smoking a cigarette; he, lecturing her on the evils thereof.

"Didn't you pay any attention to our hearings?" asked the Senator from Washington. "Surely you know how hazardous smoking is."

Jermaine turned to her lord and master, giving him a full look from under deep-fringed eyelashes.

"Why don't you fasten your seat belt?" she asked. Magnuson did.

Knocking Out China?
It probably won't be admitted officially, but the Joint Chiefs have just completed a new set of plans for knocking out the Chinese nuclear works deep in the interior. These are strictly contingency plans, of course, which would not be used unless the Chinese attacked the United States first.

The plans were formulated after it became known last summer that China had developed limited missiles. In September, therefore, high-ranking officers from the Joint Chiefs' technical staff traveled to the Far East on a secret mission to assemble the latest intelligence on China's nuclear complex and its vulnerability. From this information, the plans for attack have now been updated.

It is no particular secret that China could be easily knocked out of the nuclear race in case of open warfare between the two countries. No doubt this has a powerful restraining influence upon Red Chinese leaders. They have issued public taunts that Uncle Sam is a paper tiger, but nevertheless have taken care not to twist the tiger's tail.

However, the behavior of Mao Tse-tung is unpredictable. He appears to have turned China at times into a massive lunatic asylum which has caused Pentagon planners to wonder whether the Chinese might take a foolish, suicidal, military gamble.

As a result, Secretary of Defense McNamara ordered construction of a limited anti-ballistic missile system, which could knock down the intercontinental missiles the Chinese are expected to develop in the 1970s. In addition the Joint Chiefs prepared plans for a possible, irrational Chinese move which might come before the 1970s.

Most authorities don't expect such a move. But the Pentagon's policy is to hope for the best and prepare for the worst.

Resnick Will Give New Primary Law Brisk Workout

By CHARLES DUMAS
Albany, N. Y. (AP) — It looks as though New York State's new direct-primary law is going to get a brisk workout from the Democrats in next year's U. S. Senate derby.

One Democrat already has declared himself a candidate for his party's nomination—to oppose Republican Jacob K. Javits,—and at least two more are expected to jump in.

Under the old system, they would have to fight it out at a state convention, lining up delegates or party bosses who control delegates, and that would be that.

But, under the new law, every hopeful can take his case directly to the enrolled voters of his party in a statewide primary election.

Politicians who opposed dumping the hallowed old convention system argued that the direct-primary law would give an advantage to wealthy men—those with the personal resources to finance lavish campaigns.

Good Test for Law
As it is taking shape, next year's Democratic contest could provide a good test of that argument.

U. S. Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick, the first to declare his candidacy, is a self-made millionaire, who hasn't been bashful about spending money in two razzle-dazzle congressional campaigns.

At this stage, Resnick's opposition is most likely to come from New York's former Mayor Robert F. Wagner and from Morris Abram, a New York lawyer being touted as a potential political star.

Neither Wagner nor Abram could be described as impoverished, but neither has Resnick's kind of money. They would have to have outside help to finance major campaigns, with lots of TV and all the trimmings.

Final Filming Saturday Of 'Return of Esopus'

The Lower Esopus Waterway Committee will be on the move again this Saturday for the final filming of "Return of the Esopus," under the direction of cameraman Tom Johnson.

Boats will leave the Town of Ulster pump house at about 9 a. m. and will end up at Parish Lane.

Interested parties have been asked by the committee to be available along the waterfront to be interviewed.

The committee, under the chairmanship of Huyler Van Wagenen, is dedicated to the preserving of the Esopus Creek as a vital waterway with large-scale recreation potential.

The film will attempt to depict the decline of the Esopus, showing how clogging will eventually lead to stagnation and possibly flooding.

Once the film is completed it will be sent to interested parties in Washington, D. C. and Albany.

The N. Y. State Department of Conservation has already consented to see the film and it is expected that officials from other agencies will want to see it also.

Johnson is currently employed by radio station WKNY as a newsman.

Homage Paid Today To Kingston Court

City officials gathered this morning to pay tribute to past Kingston City Court judges and to the future of the court.

Assembling in court chambers, nearly 25 persons paid homage to the court's history and the men who made it.

But the ceremonies were dual. Beginning Jan. 1, 1968, Kingston's City Court will become the ninth such court in New York State to acquire jurisdiction of $6,000 in civil matters. It joins Long Beach, Mt. Vernon, New Rochelle, Yonkers, Syracuse, Buffalo, Utica and White Plains in acquiring this amount of jurisdiction.

Presently Poughkeepsie only claims $3,000 and Albany $2,000 in civil redress.

Current City Court Judge Hubert A. Richter explained, "Persons living in Kingston or the adjacent townships, or a person employed in the city can claim the court Jan. 1 for matters within $6,000."

Richter said, "This gives area residents a new forum to dispense civil matters ordinarily destined to higher courts."

The only township excepting is Esopus. The law states that residents must not be divided by a body of water to use Kingston's City Court.

Former judges honored were Harry E. Schirick, presently a retired State Supreme Court Justice; Augustus Shufeldt, deceased; Bernard A. Culloton; Matthew Cahill; Raymond J. Mino, present County Court Judge; Aaron E. Klein; and Joseph D. Saccoman.

City Court was changed to what it is today from the old Recorder's Court. The change was made in 1929.

Quality Maple Fire Doused By Sprinkler

Quality Maple Blocks, a wood manufacturing concern located along Deyo Street, was spared destruction yesterday by an internal sprinkler system when fire erupted, firemen declared today.

"The building complex surely would have burned to the ground if it hadn't been for that sprinkler system," a spokesman said.

Officials said that the blaze erupted Thursday morning when an employee dropped a burning sander into a sawdust pile. Flames quickly spread, a fireman noted, and touched off the sprinkler.

Maple Block is owned by Charles and Morris Monashefsky. Damage was nominal, authorities said.

Dem Committeeman Position in Balance

A ghost of the June 28, 1966 primary election for Democratic State Committeeman is scheduled to walk at 2 p. m. this afternoon before Supreme Court Justice T. Paul Kane at Cobleskill.

Whether it will depend on what happens in Democratic Party circles in a last minute decision.

Back in June 1966 there was a contest between former Ninth Ward Supervisor James T. McCord and John J. Schick, recently defeated Democratic candidate for county judge, for office of Democratic State Committeeman.

Schick was declared elected by some 17 votes. His election was contested by McCord who challenged 211 allegedly void and protested ballots cast at the primary election for Democratic State Committeeman from Ulster county.

Schick had been holding the position until last Wednesday when he submitted his resignation.

The evening of his death, Police Officers Henry Sira and Patrick Colbert report they stopped at the victim's grocery store to purchase cigarettes at about 10:35 p. m. About an hour later, cruising in their patrol car, the officers passed the store and noticed glass in the door was broken. Patrolman Sira entered the store and found Dietz lying on the floor in a pool of blood. Taken to the hospital, Dietz never regained consciousness.

Police, reporting that a blunt instrument was used in the attack on the elderly storekeeper, worked extensively on the case and later arrested Schiskey who was subsequently indicted by the grand jury.

Dietz served as a sergeant in World War I and saw service in the Argonne offensive.

He was well known throughout the area and was the father of Robert H. Dietz, who was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor after he had given his life in the village of Kirchheim, Germany, March 29, 1945.

William A. Kelly, assigned counsel for the defendant, reserved his remarks until the date of sentencing and Schiskey was remanded to jail.

Schiskey was absent without leave from the U. S. Navy at the time he was arrested and accused of the crime.

Death of the aged grocery store proprietor was called one of the most vicious in the history of Kingston. Dietz had conducted the small grocery store at 448 Hasbrouck Avenue for many years and was considered a friend to everyone who ever visited his store, located only a block from city hall and police headquarters.

Dialect of Own

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Negro children from low-income families have a dialect of their own and should be taught English as if it were a foreign language, a linguistics expert says.

Dr. William A. Stewart told a group of Miami educators that school teachers must not mistake the dialect for simply incorrect English.

"We can sing 'We Shall Overcome' and build housing projects until we are blue in the face but we can't educate the culturally disadvantaged child by treating his dialect as sloppy English," Stewart said.

"We must teach him new skills without applying our value judgments to the way he behaves, just as we would teach him French, for example."

UCCC Conducts TV Workshop For Staffers

Ulster County Community College is currently conducting an in-service workshop for instructional television for interested members of the faculty and staff of the College.

The aim of the workshop is to introduce staff members to the potential value of closed circuit television as an instructional tool and to give them a first-hand working knowledge of the medium.

There are two groups of faculty and staff members participating in the workshop, which will run for eight consecutive weeks. As part of the workshop, participants will write and produce original scripts in their areas of competence. Each script will be recorded on the college's video tape machines for evaluation and learning purposes.

The college has a small but complete television studio equipped with two quality cameras, a film chain, control console and two video tape recorders. Each participant will be given the opportunity to become acquainted with the operation of the equipment and with the technical procedures for producing instructional television programs.

The workshop is being conducted by John America, director of instructional media, who is in charge of the television and instructional media programs of the college.

Nabbed After Chase, Faces Nine Charges

A police chase along the State Thruway south of Kingston during which speeds exceeding 100 miles an hour were noted, ended Thursday night with the arrest of a Florida man for nine Vehicle and Traffic Law violations.

State Trooper Robert Houghtaling, of the Thruway detail, said Calvert Witherspoon, 27, of Fourt Lauderdale, was apprehended by Trooper Roger Swanson with the assistance of troopers from the Newburgh Thruway station.

According to Houghtaling, Witherspoon was cited by Swanson for driving without a license, making a U turn on the superhighway, having an open beer container in his car, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, driving the wrong way, speeding, reckless driving, failing to comply with a police order and failing to keep to the right.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Rexford Schneider, Town of New Paltz, Witherspoon pleaded guilty to the charges. He was fined a total of $380 or 21 days in the county jail. In lieu of payment of the fines he was committed to jail.

Trooper Swanson was on patrol on the superhighway shortly after 9 p. m. when he spotted the southbound car at speeds of more than 100 miles an hour, authorities reported. Swanson overtook the vehicle and forced the driver to pull over and stop. As the trooper got out of the patrol car the Florida man took off at a high speed, Houghtaling reported.

The chase resumed and as the two cars raced south, Witherspoon reportedly made a sudden U turn and headed north, with Swanson in hot pursuit. Another U turn and Witherspoon sped in a southerly direction.

A radio call alerted Newburgh troopers and they joined Swanson and soon the Florida car was stopped and the operator arrested, according to Houghtaling.

Rondout Demolition Resumes Next Week

Ward Tongue, acting urban renewal director, today announced that the William M. Young & Co. of Newark, N. J. will resume demolition in the Broadway East Project starting next week.

The agency has approximately 40 buildings for release to the contractor. The majority of the buildings are commercial properties, many along Broadway.

Demolition was suspended last May, pursuant to an order from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Certain contract technicalities have now been resolved which will permit completion of the present contract by Feb. 1, 1968.

Tongue said the agency is continuing to acquire properties in the Broadway East Project area, for inclusion in a third demolition contract to be let in 1968. Several of the remaining properties, Tongue said, require court procedure to clear title deficiencies, while others are now before a court appointed condemnation commission for price determination.

The funeral of Mrs. Katherine Williams of 324 Boulevard, who died Monday was held Thursday at 9 a. m. from Francis J. During the repose at the funeral home many called to pay their respects. Wednesday night the Rev. James J. LeBar visited the home and with those assembled recited the Holy Rosary. Numerous and beautiful floral tributes together with many spiritual bouquets were received. Burial took place in St. Mary's Cemetery where Father Keating pronounced the blessing. Bearers were Charles Stauble, Howard Stauble, Paul Stauble and Charles Howard.

Mrs. Virginia McNierney

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Austin V. Carey was celebrant of the Mass which was largely attended. During the repose at the funeral home many friends, neighbors and relatives called to express condolence to the family. persons who served as delegates to the 1964 convention. Two since have died.

Of those who responded, 19 said they expected to be delegates to the 1968 convention and thus would have a voice in choosing the nominee. Of that group, 15 were for Rockefeller, 2 for Nixon and 2—that is, Rockefeller and Javits—for Romney.

New York will send another 92-vote delegation to next year's convention. It will be the largest from any state.

Key Question

The key questions asked in the survey were:

—Whom do you favor for the Republican nomination?

—Do you think you favorite would have the best chance of defeating President Johnson?

—If not, whom would you name as the strongest candidate?

—In your view, what combination of men would constitute the strongest ticket in 1968?

All 33 who named Rockefeller as first choice also said they thought he would have the best chance of beating Johnson.

Three of the eight Nixon supporters, however, expressed doubts about Nixon's ability to win the election. They did not explain their reasons.

Each of the three doubtful Nixon backers said they thought Rockefeller actually would be the strongest candidate, and each named Reagan as his best running mate.

In backing Romney, both Rockefeller and Javits maintained he would have the best chance of defeating Johnson. Javits explained that he had chosen Romney "in view of Gov. Rockefeller's declaration of non-interest."

Plugs Romney

Javits said the strongest ticket would be "Romney and whoever he chooses as a running mate." Rockefeller did not answer the running-mate question.

One delegate, who asked not to be quoted by name, said that in choosing Rockefeller, "This does not mean that I think he is a candidate. I just think he would make the best president."

The nearest that Percy came to first-place mention was in a comment by Palmer D. Farrington of Cedarhurst, who preferred a Rockefeller-Reagan ticket. He said, "Percy could be the dark horse after Nixon and Rockefeller fail to get the nomination."

HOLLY BEYÉ

Evening of Prose, Poetry

An evening of prose and poetry will open performing Arts of Woodstock's second season at the Little Theater-off-the-Green, Tinker Street, Woodstock. Four poets, who are also writers of prose and plays, will read from their works tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Holly Beyé, of Byrdcliffe, Woodstock, is widely known as a poet and playwright. Miss Beyé's The White Angel, produced by PAW last winter was a tremendous hit; and her latest play, The Banana Thief, will be the first production of PAW this winter.

She will read from anthologies and little magazines, rather than from her published books of poetry.

Musa Guston, of the Maverick Woodstock, has been published in Art in America, Art and Literature, and Locus Solus. She is also a painter, with murals in Laconia, N. H., Waverly, N. Y., and aboard two of the President Line ships.

A Rochesterian by birth, Frank Mele is a regionally known professional musician who continues to play and teach violin and viola at his studio in Woodstock.

"I came to writing fairly late," said Mele, "and when I had written my first stories a continuing impulsion to write very nearly supplanted music."

Mele's short stories have been published in The Quarterly Review of Literature, and in Blue-stone. He has written a three act play; and last March completed a novel.

Tad Richards, of New Paltz, is a teacher of English literature, a poet, and a playwright. Richards' play, Killing Charlie, was given a staged reading at the Little Theater last spring, and will be produced by Performing Arts of Woodstock this season.

Final Filming Saturday Of 'Return of Esopus'

The Lower Esopus Waterway view with Dr. Timothy Leary more direct method had to be Committee will be on the move again this Saturday for the final filming of "Return of the Esopus," under the direction of cameraman Tom Johnson.

Boats will leave the Town of Ulster pump house at about 9 a. m. and will end up at Parish Lane.

Interested parties have been asked by the committee to be available along the waterfront to be interviewed.

The committee, under the chairmanship of Huyler Van Wagenen, is dedicated to the preserving of the Esopus Creek as a vital waterway with large-scale recreation potential.

The film will attempt to depict the decline of the Esopus, showing how clogging will eventually lead to stagnation and possibly flooding.

Once the film is completed it will be sent to interested parties in Washington, D. C. and Albany.

The N. Y. State Department of Conservation has already consented to see the film and it is expected that officials from other agencies will want to see it also.

Johnson is currently employed by radio station WKNY as a newsman.

Homage Paid Today To Kingston Court

City officials gathered this morning to pay tribute to past Kingston City Court judges and to the future of the court.

Assembling in court chambers, nearly 25 persons paid homage to the court's history and the men who made it.

But the ceremonies were dual. Beginning Jan. 1, 1968, Kingston's City Court will become the ninth such court in New York State to acquire jurisdiction of $6,000 in civil matters. It joins Long Beach, Mt. Vernon, New Rochelle, Yonkers, Syracuse, Buffalo, Utica and White Plains in acquiring this amount of jurisdiction.

Presently Poughkeepsie only claims $3,000 and Albany $2,000 in civil redress.

Current City Court Judge Herbert A. Richter explained, "Persons living in Kingston or the adjacent townships, or a person employed in the city can claim the court Jan. 1 for matters within $6,000."

Richter said, "This gives area residents a new forum to dispute civil matters ordinarily destined to higher courts."

The only township excepting is Esopus. The law states that residents must not be divided by a body of water to use Kingston's City Court.

Former judges honored were Harry E. Schirick, presently a retired State Supreme Court Justice; Augustus Shufeldt, deceased; Bernard A. Culloton; Matthew Cahill; Raymond J. Mino, present County Court Judge; Aaron E. Klein; and Joseph D. Saccoman.

City Court was changed to what it is today from the old Recorder's Court. The change was made in 1929.

Chimney Fire Checked in City

A chimney fire in the second story apartment of 37 Hudson Street was brought under control last night by city firemen, it was reported.

Firemen said the blaze erupted in the apartment of Charles Ferguson around 9:30 p. m. The cause was an overheated smoke stack, officials declared.

According to reports, the stack overheated and caused wooden boards covering the chimney to ignite. Firemen attacked the fire from the attic. Firemen disclosed.

The dwelling, a two-story frame, houses two families. Ferguson occupies the second floor and Edward Coddington lives on the first.

Nabbed After Chase, Faces Nine Charges

A police chase along the State Thruway south of Kingston during which speeds exceeding 100 miles an hour were noted, ended Thursday night with the arrest of a Florida man for nine Vehicle and Traffic Law violations.

—In your view, what combination of men would constitute the strongest ticket in 1968?

All 33 who named Rockefeller as first choice also said they thought he would have the best chance of beating Johnson.

Three of the eight Nixon supporters, however, expressed doubts about Nixon's ability to win the election. They did not explain their reasons.

Each of the three doubtful Nixon backers said they thought Rockefeller actually would be the strongest candidate, and each named Reagan as his best running mate.

In backing Romney, both Rockefeller and Javits maintained he would have the best chance of defeating Johnson. Javits explained that he had chosen Romney "in view of Gov. Rockefeller's declaration of non-interest."

Plugs Romney
Javits said the strongest ticket would be "Romney and whoever he chooses as a running mate." Rockefeller did not answer the running-mate question. One delegate, who asked not to be quoted by name, said that in choosing Rockefeller, "This does not mean that I think he is a candidate. I just think he would make the best president."

The nearest that Percy came to first-place mention was in a comment by Palmer D. Farrington of Cedarhurst, who preferred a Rockefeller-Reagan ticket. He said, "Percy could be the dark horse after Nixon and Rockefeller fail to get the nomination."

HOLLY BEVE FRANK MELE

Evening of Prose, Poetry

An evening of prose and poetry will open performing Arts of Woodstock's second season at the Little Theater-off-the-Green, Tinker Street, Woodstock. Four poets, who are also writers of prose and plays, will read from their works tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Holly Beve, of Byrdcliffe, Woodstock, is widely known as a poet and playwright. Miss Beve's "The White Angel," produced by PAW last winter was a tremendous hit; and her latest play, "The Banana Thief," will be the first production of PAW this winter.

She will read from anthologies and little magazines, rather than from her published books of poetry.

Musa Guston, of the Maverick, Woodstock, has been published in Art in America, Art and Literature, and Locus Solus. She is also a painter, with murals in Laconia, N. H., Waverly, N. Y., and aboard two of the President Line ships.

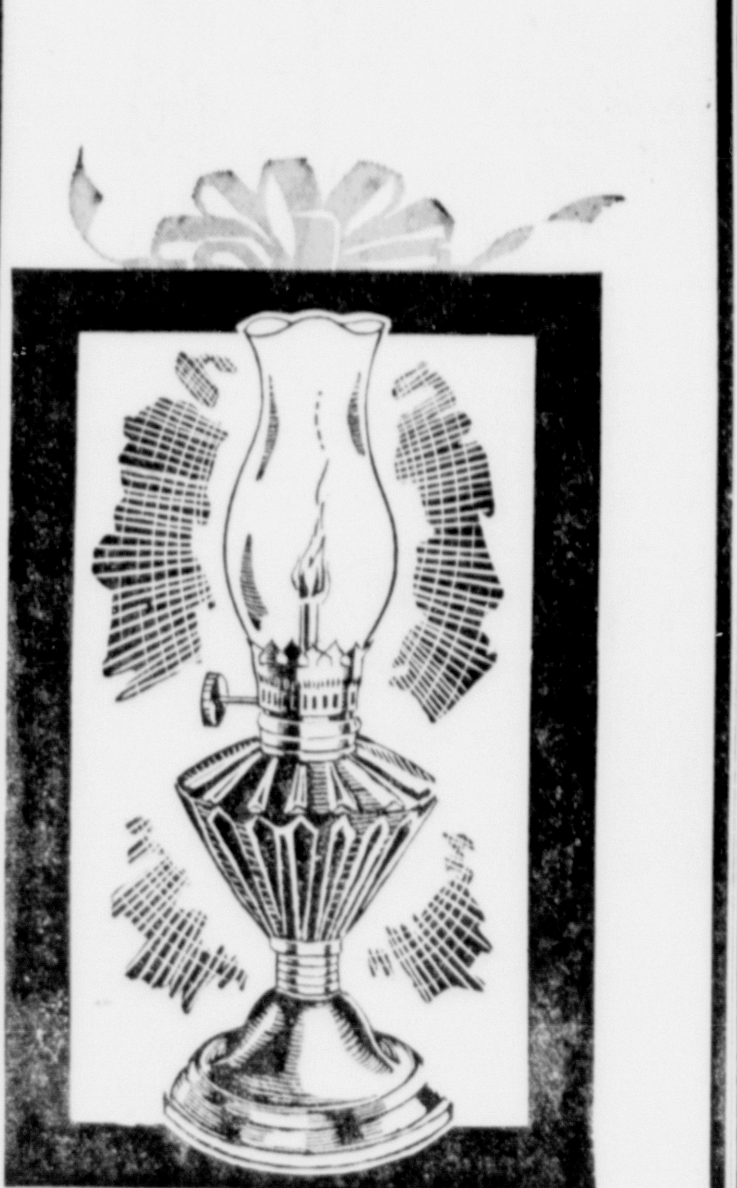

A Rochesterian by birth, Frank Mele is a regionally known professional musician who continues to play and teach violin and viola at his studio in Woodstock.

"I came to writing fairly late," said Mele, "and when I had written my first stories a continuing impulsion to write very nearly supplanted music."

Mele's short stories have been published in The Quarterly Review of Literature, and in Blue Stone. He has written a three act play; and last March completed a novel.

Tad Richards, of New Paltz, is a teacher of English literature, a poet, and a playwright. Richards' play, "Killing Charlie," was given a staged reading at the Little Theater last spring, and will be produced by Performing Arts of Woodstock this season.

Some Will Get Burned
When Speculation Cools

Q—I am a retired doctor, 76, and have $5,000 to $10,000 that I could throw away, but I really don't want to. I am particularly interested in low-priced stocks where there is a possibility that I could make a profit in a short time. You have the knowledge and I don't, and I'm hoping you will give me the names of very low-priced stocks to buy. —R. P.

A—I will be glad to give you the benefit of whatever knowledge and experience I possess, but you may not like it very much. I know of nothing more dangerous than trying for a fast dollar—particularly in low-priced stocks—when herds of other untrained investors are throwing their money in the same direction. Most issues selling at a low dollar price, with any speculative potential at all, have had sharp run-ups this year. The record activity and volume on the American Exchange, where a large number of these issues are listed, is causing considerable concern to officials of that Exchange and rightly so. I don't know, nor does anyone else, how long such a speculative orgy can continue, but somewhere along the line a lot of people are going to get burned. I sincerely hope that you won't be among them, so I strongly advise you to change your thinking and buy quality, regardless of dollar price.

Q—Sometimes we read articles about mutual funds which make us think our Massachusetts Investors Trust is not the best place to keep our invested funds. What do you advise?

A—I believe you refer to articles critical of fund sales and management fees, which are the least debatable subjects. You own stock in the oldest fund, with a record of conservative but steady growth. I advise you to hold your shares. (Roger Spear's 48-page Guide to Successful Investing is available to readers. Committed to Jail In Car Theft Case

Pleading guilty to unauthorized use of a motor vehicle Thursday afternoon in county court before County Judge Raymond J. Mino, a New York man temporarily employed at East Durham, was given a six months jail sentence.

Sean Roger Landers, 43, employed in an East Durham bar, pleaded guilty to taking a Chrysler car last June 7. Edward Greene appeared for Landers, who said he could get employment in New York and would leave this locality. He receives credit for time already spent in jail.

Two persons indicted for attempted first degree murder, second degree assault and conspiracy as a felony, also figured in the afternoon session of court. Donald Albert Dunn, who along with Mrs. Lorraine Mae Strickland, Marlboro, is accused of an alleged shooting of Mrs. Strickland's husband, had his case adjourned on motion of Hubert Richter, his attorney, who told the court he intended to make application for suppression of evidence, alleging that the gun allegedly used in the shooting had been illegally seized. Dunn was remanded to jail pending motions.

Hearings Set On Employees Representation

The New York State Public Employment Relations Board announced Thursday that it will start a hearing next Monday on a petition by District Council 50, AFSCME, to reverse the recognition and unit determinations made by the Governor for State employees.

The initial part of the hearing will be concerned with a request for a stay in negotiations made by Council 50. The petition was filed today with the State Board by Alfred Wurf, executive director of Council 50.

Wednesday, Governor Rockefeller announced that three negotiating units will be established for state employees. One unit will be for professional employees of the State University; another for members of the State Police, and a third will be a general unit made up of all other State employees.

In his announcement, Governor Rockefeller said he will recognize the Civil Service Employees' Association as the negotiating agent for the State employees in the general unit. No organization has been recognized to represent the professional employees in the State University or members of the State Police.

The State Board will open the hearing at 10 a. m. in its Albany office, 875 Central Avenue. Jerome Lefkowitz, deputy chairman of the State Board, has been designated by the State Board as the hearing officer.

Represented at the hearing will be Council 50, the petitioner; CSEA, and the Governor's office.

Bans Rate Hike

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Public Service Commission today suspended the Corning Natural Gas Corporation's plan to raise rates on Dec. 19, pending a public hearing on the proposal.

The company had filed a new rate schedule that would raise charges to its 11,300 customers by a total of $190,900 a year. The PSC said it would announce a time and place for the hearing soon. Meanwhile, the higher rate schedule will not be permitted to go into effect.

Tells Local Lions About World in Dark

Kingston Lions enjoyed a rare treat Tuesday afternoon during their weekly luncheon at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The group of Kingston area businessmen, more often than not accustomed to hearing talks on civic and state matters, were treated to a delightful half-hour talk by Miss Jeanne Fox, a local girl now very active in the business world at the real estate office of O'Connor and Fox, local brokers.

Miss Fox, a graduate of Kingston High and one of the first students at Ulster County Community College, lost her eyesight several years ago. Her informative talk detailed her experience in regaining her mobility by use of a seeing-eye dog obtained from the Seeing-Eye Dog Institute in Morristown, N. J. The dog, "Happy", a female Boxer, at the age of one year was trained for three months at the institute. At that time Miss Fox and the dog were introduced and an additional three weeks were spent in training before returning to Kingston.

Many members of the Lions Club who make eyesight conservation and aid to the visually handicapped their main area of endeavor are vitally aware of the problems Miss Fox encountered. However, they were all enlightened by the striking young lady as she spoke of the problems faced in using a seeing-eye dog. Such things as red lights, what with the dog being color blind, going down stairs, crossing in mid-block, and revolving doors originally posed considerable problems but are now taken as commonplace by Miss Fox.

Area residents are advised to watch their TV listings as Miss Fox has recently made a film documentary which is scheduled to be aired in the near future.

Dick's Atlantic Phone The correct telephone number for Dick's Atlantic Service Station, Albany Avenue, is 331-7191, not the number listed in Tuesday night's advertisement. Dick Morris and John Carney formerly of Dick's Texaco have moved to this new location.

LBJ Health Excellent, White House Physician

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's doctor reported Thursday that the chief executive's health is excellent.

It was just a year ago that the President underwent surgery to repair a hernia and remove a small growth in the region of his right vocal chord. In response to inquiries on the anniversary of that event, the White House released a memorandum from Adm. George G. Burkley, the White House physician who attends the President.

Dr. Burkley went over Johnson's health record for the past four years, during which time he also underwent a gall bladder operation on Oct. 8, 1965, and the removal of ureteral stones.

"The President's basic health has been excellent throughout the past four years," Dr. Burkley reported.

He said the post-operative course after the 1965 operation was essentially uneventful and that recovery after the operation has been excellent.

Po'keepsie Smallest In Model City Plans

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Federal funds to plan rehabilitation of blighted neighborhoods in the model-cities program were earmarked today for four cities in New York State.

The announcement of the Department of Housing and Urban Development drew a disappointed reaction, however, from U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y.

The amount of the funds was not confirmed immediately. A spokesman for the State Office of Planning Coordination said he expected word late this week. The spokesman said New York City had asked for more than $400,000, Buffalo for $246,312, Rochester for $199,360, and Poughkeepsie, $166,160. The New York City request was for planning in Central and East Harlem, the South Bronx, and Central Brooklyn.

In Washington, Javits said it was unfortunate that cuts in the program by Congress made grants impossible for other worthwhile New York projects, especially those in Binghamton, Syracuse and Yonkers.

He said he will join in the effort to restore funds to the program next year. Stratton said he was disappointed that Amsterdam, N.Y., where he resides, was excluded from the list.

Stratton said he supported the program only because of assurances that small cities would receive fair consideration and that the bulk of the money would not go to big cities. "Yet today the announcement discloses that as far as New York State is concerned there is only one small city (Poughkeepsie) and everything else goes to the three largest cities in the state."

Coach House Players Presents Light Comedy

By DOROTHY A. NAREL
To love and not be loved in return is extreme punishment. This is the moral in George Axelrod's light comedy "Goodbye Charlie" which opened a three-night stand in the George Washington School auditorium yesterday.

Presented by Coach House Players under the capable direction of William Skilling, the play will be repeated tonight (Nov. 17) and Saturday with curtains at 8:30.

What makes Axelrod's vehicle funny is the situation whereby a modern day Don Juan gets shot (while escaping through a ship's porthole) and when he arrives at the pearly gates, the Almighty sends him back as a girl. What retribution for his sins of the flesh?

George Tracy, played by Frank Ryerson, stands by and gives solace while his old pal goes through the tortuous but funny experiences of walking on high heels, smoking, even visiting the famous Elizabeth Arden Salon and spending an afternoon "with the girls."

Good Cast

Ryerson, who is speech and drama teacher at Kingston High School, is a convincing bosom pal and in several spots during the evening he commands the comedy spotlights. No stranger to the stage, Ryerson was a member of the New York State Theatre Production Staff and while he was with the Albany Civic Theatre, he acted in and directed "The Rose Tattoo" and "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Ryerson was responsible for the successful summer workshop session at Coach House this summer also.

Enacting the role which was originated by Lauren Bacall on Broadway in 1959 is talented Barbara Policano. While Barbara doesn't have Bacall's brassy delivery, which would be more in keeping with the play's theme, she does a very creditable job as the reincarnated Don Juan. Her interests do not end with stage performances for this fall, she had a one man exhibit of artwork at Artercraft Gallery in Kingston.

The person to watch is Dorothy Darrow, cast as Rusty the wife with whom the star of the show was cavorting at the time of his untimely and ungraceful death. Dorothy is a Coach House Scholarship winner and studied at Ithaca College in the music and drama department. She is a new member of Coach House but can chalk up "Goodbye Charlie" as a good performance.

Outstanding Set

Taking incidental roles are Bruce Watson, Eloise Gardner, Harry Sommer and Roger Scholl.

Chatting with Coach House President Victor Fletcher during intermission, I learned it was the first time Harry Sommer served as production manager and was in charge of the stage sets. Our hat is off to Sommer for the beautiful and modern set complete with sliding glass door. It was a "first" for that very talented Ralph Harper also who served as consultant to the technical staff this year and enjoyed "Goodbye Charlie" from the other side of the lights for a change. Ralph has pulled many a miracle out of the hat during his many years as chief set builder.

Sommer is a tool and die maker by trade and music occupies a great deal of his time. For the past 10 years he has been a member of the choir at Fair Street Reformed Church. For five summers he has been soloist with the Yankee Male Chorus and sang with the Empire State Music Festival. He is a native New Yorker.

Assisting Sommer on the technical staff was Francis Gardner as electrician.

Heading up committees as chairman for this production were Helen Hodges, stage setting and properties; Cordelia Feltman, costumes; Barbara Seissler, make-up; Louise Pomeroy and Barbara Policano, art; Kay Fletcher, publicity; William Hawk, Elizabeth Askue, play program; Margaret Mellert, ushers; Pat and Rae Bottino, associate memberships; and Hilda Krum, single tickets.

Next Production

"Goodbye Charlie" is expected to play to capacity houses tonight and Saturday. The next production, earmarked for February 1, 2 Betty Lindsay, secretary; Cordelia Feltman, treasurer; June

"Hatful of Rain." In May, Boyle, corresponding secretary; Coach House and Bill Skilling and George Betts, business manager. Your age.

On the board of directors are Mary Becker, June Boyle, Victor Fletcher, Doris Kopf, Norman Shapiro, Harry Sommer, Pat Bottino, Helen Hodges and Betty Lindsay.

Coach House is a member of the New York State Community Theatre Association.

Mohawk Pilots Threaten Strike

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—Mohawk Airlines pilots say they will strike the carrier at midnight Tuesday unless agreement is reached in a 15-month old contract dispute.

The strike would come on the eve of heavy Thanksgiving holiday travel.

The Airlines Pilots Association said a contract between Mohawk and its 300 pilots has been under negotiation since Aug. 1, 1966. Wages, hours and scheduling were reported to be the main issues.

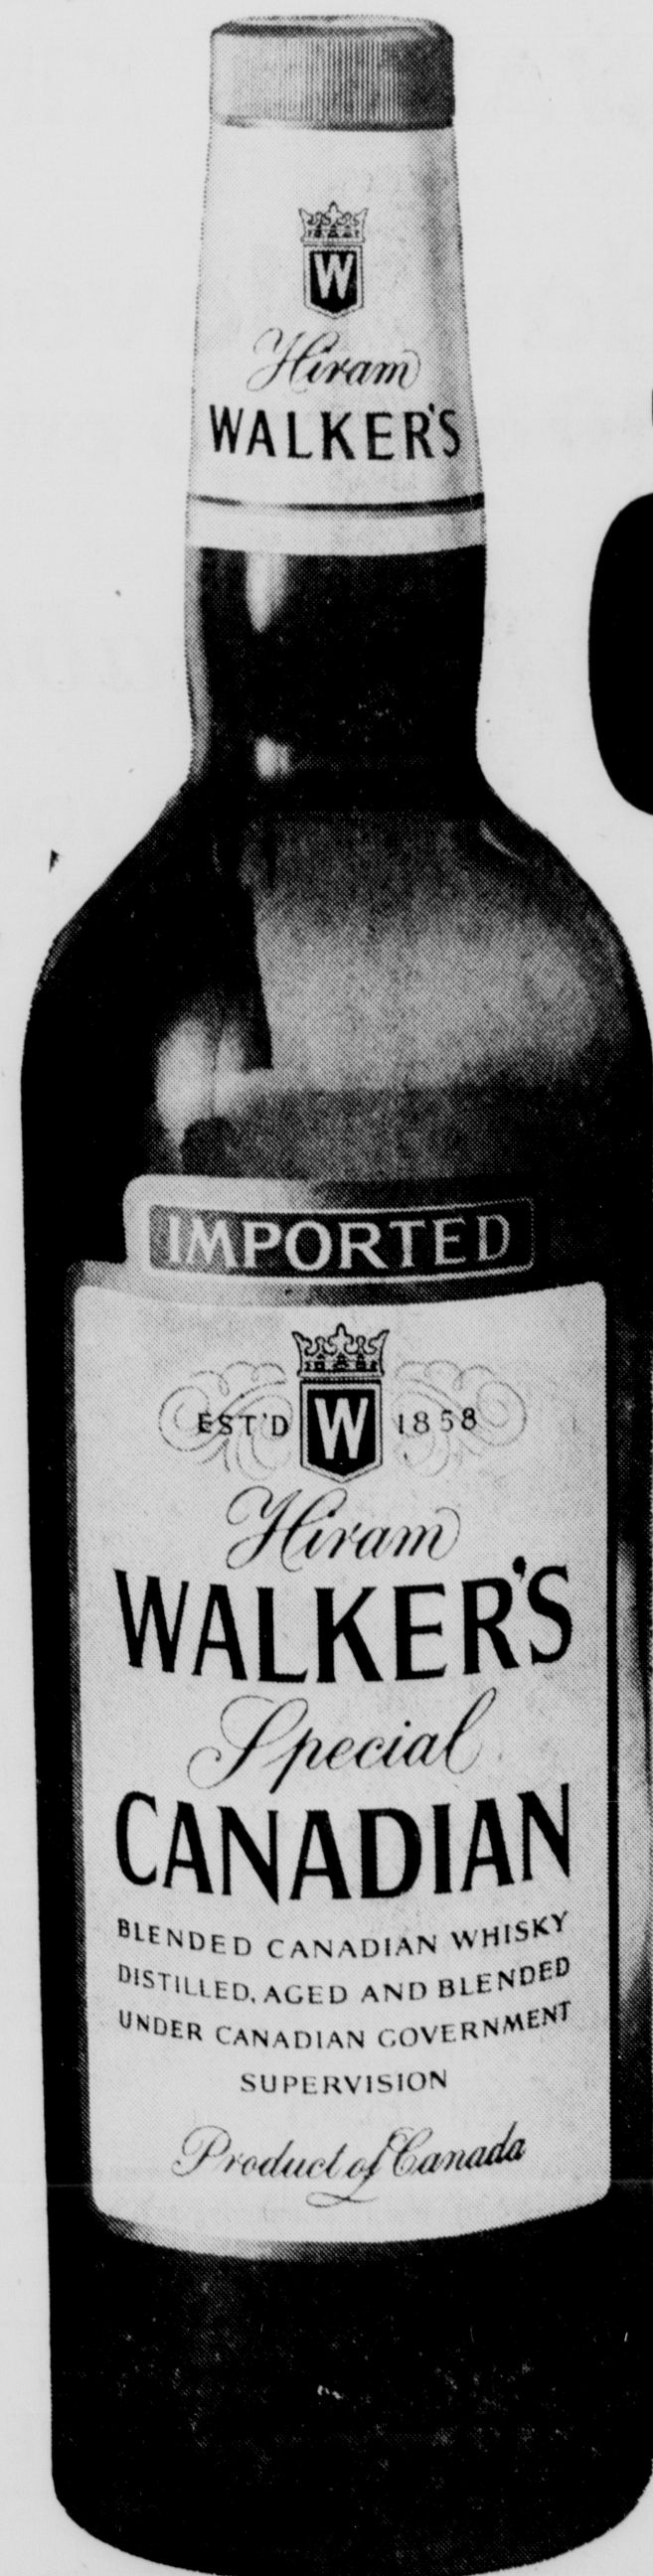

Mohawk, with headquarters here, serves cities in 10 states and in Canada.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Nov. 17, 1947—The state allotted $85,000 toward the repair of the Sundown-Montella Road in the Town of Esopus. Kingston Police Chief Ernest Boss, injured in an automobile accident, was still reported in serious condition in Kingston Hospital.

Nov. 17, 1957—Sgt. Edward Crosswell of the BCL, a former Kingston policeman and fireman, helped breakup an underworld meeting at Apalachin.

A local search for a fourth teenager believed to be involved in the $56 robbery of Kingston Laundry continued.

Po'keepsie Smallest In Model City Plans

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Federal funds to plan rehabilitation of blighted neighborhoods in the model-cities program were earmarked today for four cities in New York State.

The announcement of the Department of Housing and Urban Development drew a disappointed reaction, however, from U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y.

The amount of the funds was not confirmed immediately. A spokesman for the State Office of Planning Coordination said he expected word late this week.

The spokesman said New York City had asked for more than $400,000. Buffalo for $246,312, Rochester for $199,360, and Poughkeepsie, $166,160. The York State is concerned there is only one small city (Poughkeepsie) and everything else goes to Harlem, the South Bronx, and the three largest cities in the Central Brooklyn.

In Washington, Javits said it was unfortunate that cuts in the program by Congress made grants impossible for other worthwhile New York projects, especially those in Binghamton, Syracuse and Yonkers.

He said he will join in the effort to restore funds to the program next year.

Stratton said he was disappointed that Amsterdam, N.Y., where he resides, was excluded from the list.

MILTON TSITSERA AND THE RIBBONS

Blue Ribbon Winner

Ulster Park Farm Honored

Three Brothers Egg Farm in Ulster Park won two blue ribbons at last month's Northeastern Poultry Producer's Council annual competition in Harrisburg, Pa.

The Ulster Park Chicken farm is owned and operated by Milton Tsitsera. Three generations of Tsitseras have operated the farm which has 10,000 producing hens.

145 Entries

There were 145 entries in last month's contest. Tsitsera had two entries, one which scored 99.5 and the other 99 out of a possible hundred points.

Points were awarded on Uniformity of size (12), uniformity of color (6), uniformity of shape (6), shell texture (12), condition (12) and interior quality (52). In order to win a blue ribbon an entry had to score at least 98.

Tsitsera explained to The Freeman that a farmer does not take his eggs to the contest for judging, rather the judges come to the farm and select 60 eggs for each judging at random.

Philip J. Schweppenhauser, New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets inspector, was the judge of Tsitsera's eggs. In a letter to Tsitsera, Schweppenhauser noted that the overall high quality of Three Brothers eggs was the main reason for the farm's two blue ribbons.

Three Brothers Egg Farm produces about 17 cases of 360 eggs each per week. Tsitsera

Proud of Award

Commenting on the blue ribbons Tsitsera told The Freeman, "I'm particularly proud of this award in view of the recent poor publicity the egg industry has been getting in regards to pollution. Every industry has its problems. Pollution problems can be solved, in fact, we're well on the way toward eliminating them."

Besides running the chicken farm with his son, George, Tsitsera is active in the American Legion. He is a past commander of Post 1298 in Port Jervis and is currently on the post's executive board.

Negligence Case Involving Paltz Accident Starts

An automobile negligence action arising out of an accident on December 11, 1965, in which a New Paltz Central School District driver education car was involved was taken up Thursday before Supreme Court Justice R. Waldron Herzberg and a jury.

Annette Vona, Highland, one of the student drivers in the car at the time the vehicle skidded and turned over in a field on the old New Paltz road, seeks damages for injuries. She alleges injuries to her neck and back.

The action is brought against the New Paltz Central School District, Robert Doughette, driver education instructor, and the Rizzo Ford of Highland.

Plaintiff testified the class had taken off from the New Paltz School on a day when the roads were slippery with snow and slush. She was seated in the rear of the car with another student driver at the wheel alongside the instructor. The car skidded on a patch of slush, ran off the road into a field and overturned. Mrs. Vona, then 22, climbed from the wreck through a window. She was taken to St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

Dr. Vincent P. Russo, Poughkeepsie, was called and testified to treatment he had administered. She alleges she suffered spasms of the neck and shoulder.

Appearing for the plaintiff is Paul and Edward Rosen of Poughkeepsie and Francis X. Tucker of Cook, Tucker and Dwyer, appears for all three defendants.

Efficiency In Design Shows Good Planning

By JACK McEENEY

Today's house plan, called "The Elan", shows an extremely well planned floor layout. Thoughtful design has made the kitchen most useful because the relation of working areas saves steps which in turn brings about added efficiency.

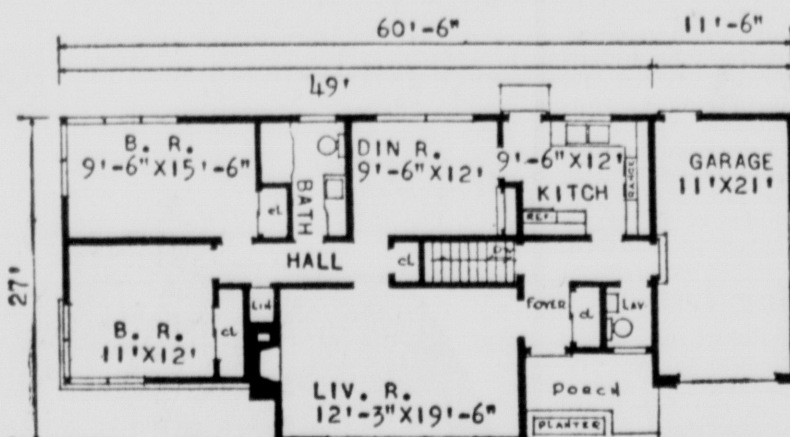

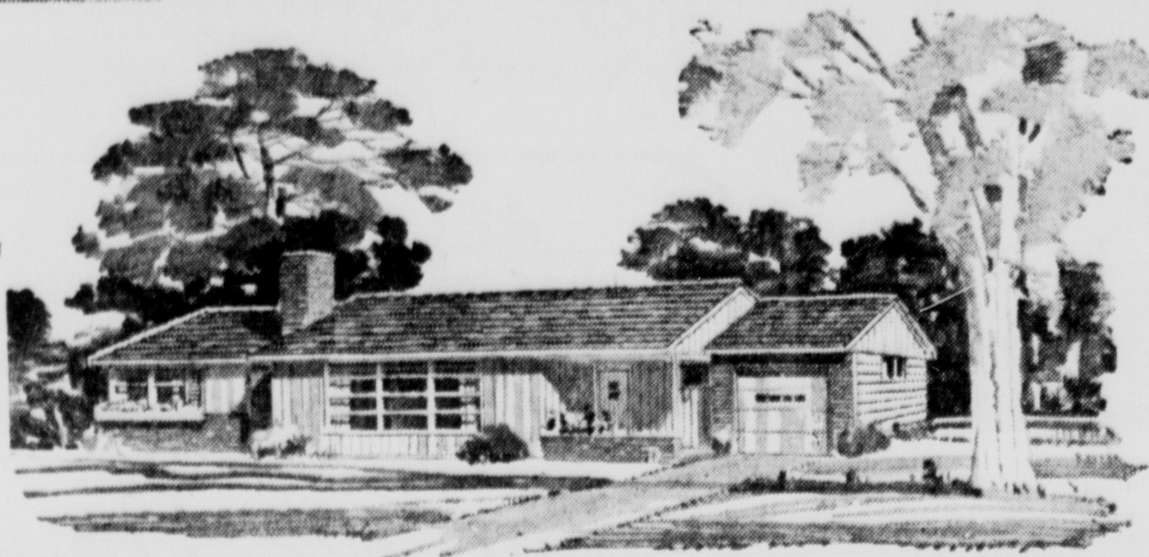

The living room, which is considered large, draws its charm from the modern fireplace, large window wall and excess of wall space for versatile placement of furniture. The two bedrooms show corner windows and sliding door wardrobes. The front foyer, ponsheltered by a covered porch, provides entry to the basement steps, kitchen, garage and lavatory. The proximity of the lavatory to these areas insures easy access for daily use.

The exterior is modern, making use of vertical siding with brick at the front, and wood shingles throughout the sides and rear.

"The Elan" has 1,000 square feet of living space and 330 square feet of covered porch and garage.

Plans for this house are available with or without basement at reasonable cost by using the accompanying cut-wardrobes. The front foyer, pon-

WINTERING YOUR ROSES:

Even the best rose growers haven't figured out why some roses do not come through the winter, in spite of ample protection. Some feel that it is not the cold winter, but the early fall freezes which do the damage. Those who belong to that school advocate protecting the roses early, even if they are in full bloom in fall. Others wait until a good hard freeze or two and then start protecting the bushes. And too, there's the group which does not believe in protecting roses. Ironically, they claim to have good luck, some reporting losses no heavier than from protected roses.

To me, the best winter protection you can give roses is to hill the plants up around the base, using soil only. A mound 8 inches around the base of the rose bushes serves as good insulation and will protect roses better than anything I know.

If your rose canes are long, we suggest you cut them back. Hybrid teas are shortened to 18 inches at time of mounding. Ramblers can be shortened too, to prevent them from wind whipping.

FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for my bulletin, HOW TO PRO-TECT ROSES OVER WINTER. It may save you from buying new rose bushes next spring.

AFRICAN VIOLETS: Notice tiny white specks on leaves of your violets? These are skeletal casts of aphids. Aphids can be controlled by spraying with nicotine sulfate. White cottony masses on stems means a tougher pest: mealy bugs. Take a piece of cotton and dip it in alcohol, then swab each cottony mass, being careful not to get any on the stem. White grigglers in the soil can be banished by dusting a little chlordane on top of soil and watering it in. Some folks mix up a weak solution of household bleach and add it to the soil. This will knock out pests.

PHILODENDRONS: If you cut off these long snake-like growths (and you should) on your philodendrons, make sure the razor blade is sterile by dipping it in hot water. Infection can set in and cause the plant to wilt or even die.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "Please tell me when to mulch our strawberry plants."

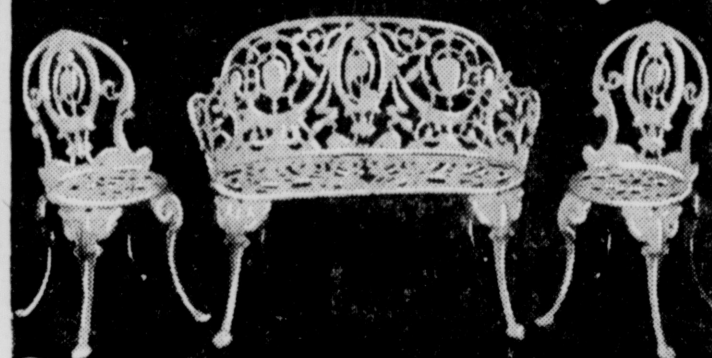

The purpose of the mulch is to prevent heaving and thawing of plants. In fall, about November 15th or so, when ground is frozen hard, apply a straw mulch, to a depth of 4 inches.

Efficiency In Design Shows Good Planning

By JACK McLENEY

Today's house plan, called "The Elan", shows an extremely well planned floor layout. Thoughtful design has made the kitchen most useful because the relation of working areas saves steps which in turn brings about added efficiency.

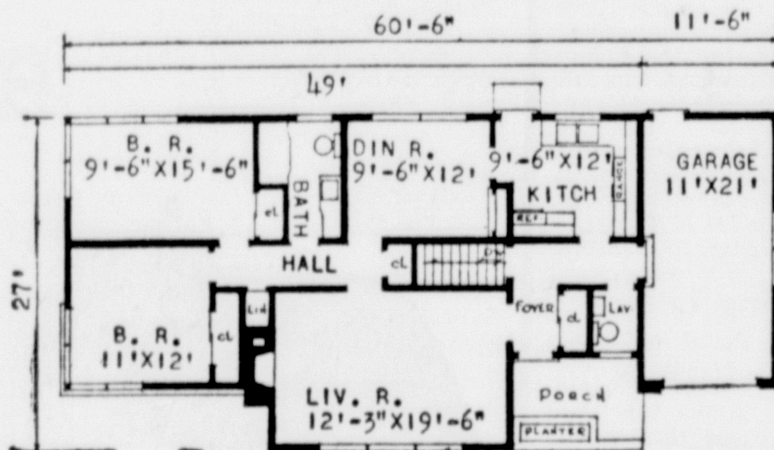

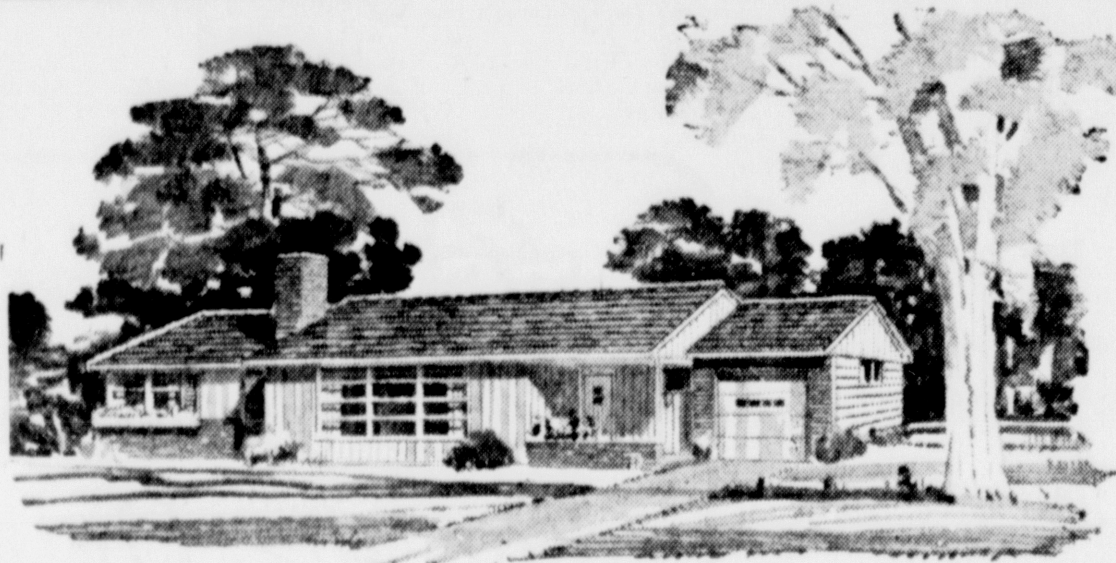

The living room, which is considered large, draws its charm from the modern fireplace, large window wall and excess of wall space for versatile placement of furniture. The two bedrooms show corner windows and sliding door wardrobes. The front foyer, sheltered by a covered porch, provides entry to the basement steps, kitchen, garage and lavatory. The proximity of the lavatory to these areas insures easy access for daily use.

The exterior is modern, making use of vertical siding with brick at the front, and wood shingles throughout the sides and rear.

"The Elan" has 1,000 square feet of living space and 330 square feet of covered porch and garage.

Plans for this house are available with or without basement at reasonable cost by using the accompanying cut-

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

WINTERING YOUR ROSES:

Even the best rose growers haven't figured out why some roses do not come through the winter, in spite of ample protection. Some feel that it is not the cold winter, but the early fall freezes which do the damage. Those who belong to that school advocate protecting the roses early, even if they are in full bloom in fall. Others wait until a good hard freeze or two and then start protecting the bushes. And too, there's the group which does not believe in protecting roses. Ironically, they claim to have good luck, some reporting losses no heavier than from protected roses.

To me, the best winter protection you can give roses is to hill the plants up around the base, using soil only. A mound 8 inches around the base of the rose bushes serves as good insulation and will protect roses better than anything I know.

If your rose canes are long, we suggest you cut them back. Hybrid teas are shortened to 18 inches at time of mounding. Rambler canes be shortened too to prevent them from wind whipping.

FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for my bulletin, HOW TO PRO-

AFRICAN VIOLETS: No-

lice tiny white specks on the leaves of your violets? These are skeletal casts of aphids. Aphids can be controlled by spraying with nicotine sulfate.

White cottony masses on stems means a tougher pest: mealy bugs. Take a piece of cotton and dip it in alcohol, then swab each cottony mass, being careful not to get any on the stem. White wrigglers in the soil can be banished by dusting a little chlordane on top of soil and watering it in.

Some folks mix up a weak solution of household bleach inches, and add it to the soil. This will knock out pests.

PHILODENDRONS: If you cut off these long snake-like growths (and you should) on your philodendrons, make sure the razor blade is sterile by dipping it in hot water. Infection can set in and cause the plant to wilt or even die.

The purpose of the mulch is to prevent heaving and thawing of plants. In fall, about November 15th or so, when ground is frozen hard, apply a layer of straw mulch, to a depth of 4 inches.

Something In It for Dad Too

Whether plans are in the making to remodel an old house or to build a new one, the extensive use of dependable, high-quality finishing materials will make life easier not only for the harried housewife, but for the busy breadwinner as well.

Inferior finishes that feature low price as their main selling point cannot compete with tried-and-true quality materials such as ceramic tile, for example, which offers such features as ease of maintenance, decorative, resistance to wear and durability.

The use of tile and other such materials inside, outside and all around the house, in kitchens, dining rooms, bathrooms, living rooms and on patios, around pools and even on the outside of a house, will mean less time spent and less energy consumed by the lady of the house as she goes about her daily house-cleaning chores.

For Dad, it will mean an end to those bothersome fix-it projects that keep him busy on weekends. And it will mean that he will be able to save money, for expensive repairs and replacement of faded and worn-out surfaces through the years will be cut down to an absolute minimum.

Tractor Stolen

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Police said thieves somehow made off with a 14-ton, bright yellow tractor from a machinery company. A firm spokesman said there are only five tractors of its type in the Midwest.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: When I get around to finishing my attic, I intend to use 16-inch tongue-and-grooved planks. Is it better to put a finish on them before I put them up and after they are all in place?

ANSWER: There are two schools of thought on this, but we have found it much better to apply the finish before the installation. However, the wood should not be handled until it is thoroughly dry.

One reason so many persons do the finishing after the walls are up is that they want to complete the room so that it can be used, figuring that they can do the finishing at their convenience. Often, however, there is such a long period between the installing and the finishing that the walls get dirty, making the eventual finishing job that much tougher.

Noisy Plumbing

In a recent survey on what women like and don't like about their bathrooms, noisy water closets ranked high on the list of complaints. According to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, the survey also showed that the "average" homemaker doesn't realize that water closets, like everything else she can buy, come in various qualities.

When it comes to bathroom equipment, it certainly pays to buy the best. The best water closet is the siphon jet. It has the best flushing action, is the quietest and the easiest to keep clean.

Ready to Welcome Luxury Liner

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The liner Queen Mary, one of man's classiest creations, takes up residence Dec. 9 in a town whose main distinction once was its abundance of migrants from the Corn Belt.

But things have changed in this now-swinging city and the Queen's new home will be in a setting perhaps unrivaled in major world ports.

New Facilities

A curving strand studded with striking high-rise apartment and office buildings, a spanking new sports arena, a convention center, a $20-million airport-size pier to be anchored by a new oceanographic center, a $130-million commercial harbor, a new $25-million, 5,000-boat marina designed to make Long Beach the "Riviera of the West."

Just offshore are stunningly landscaped artificial islands

Despite Efforts Brownstones Will Be Demolished

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — Despite efforts by Gov. Rockefeller's cousin and others to save nine historic brownstone buildings in downtown Troy, they were marked today for the wrecker's ball.

The buildings, known locally as "Doctors' Row," had been slated for destruction since 1964 to make way for a $1.7 million medical center.

The old edifices remained standing, however, as several groups pressed a fight to save them for their scenic and historic value.

The Hudson River Valley Commission, headed by Samuel Aldrich, a cousin of the governor, had led the preservation movement.

But Edward Dinan, Troy urban renewal commissioner, said Thursday night that all formal opposition to demolition had been dropped because, he said, the groups found it would be economically unfeasible to save the structures through renovation.

He said it would cost $60,000 for converting each brownstone into apartments.

68,500 of E-K Share Dividend Of 77.6 Million

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — About 68,500 employees of the Eastman Kodak Co. in the United States will receive annual wage dividends totaling $77.6 million next March 22.

Directors of the photographic supply firm approved the dividend at a board meeting Thursday.

The payment will be made in cash or contributed in the individual worker's name to the Employees' Savings and Investment Plan, a deferred profit-sharing system established by Kodak in 1912. The dividend has been declared each year since then and last year totaled $69.3 million.

The employees will receive $36 for each $1,000 they earned during the five-year period from 1963 through 1967, a spokesman said.

Wants Boards Down

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Human Relations Commission is appealing to merchants on the city's near East Side to remove plywood boards from their windows—relics of last June's racial disturbances in the neighborhood.

At a meeting Thursday night, the commission voted to send letters to 100 store-owners in the area whose show windows remain covered.

The letter says in part: "We feel that during the approaching Christmas season, returning your show windows to normal will evidence both your personal faith in the community's good will and provide a concrete demonstration of your civic-minded concern for the neighborhood's appearance."

Forms Subsidiary

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The Carborundum Co. has announced the formation of Spode Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary for the distribution of Spode chinaware throughout the United States and Canada.

The firm added Thursday that it had purchased the assets of Copeland and Thompson of New York City and Toronto, formerly the exclusive distributor. Details of the transaction were not disclosed.

Earlier this year, Carborundum acquired W. T. Copeland and Sons, a British firm that manufactures the china. It was founded in 1770 by Josiah Spode, a pioneer developer of English bone china.

Governor Reports Advances in Mental Hygiene Program

NELSON A. ROCKEFELLER

The Department of Mental Hygiene provided more service to more New York residents in fiscal year 1966-67 than ever before, Governor Rockefeller announced today.

The governor is in conference today with civic and political leaders of the area at Hudson River State Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

New York State hospitals alone treated 123,742 patients in fiscal 1966-67 compared with 121,301 patients in fiscal 1965-66, the Governor said.

Cites New Methods

"Modern treatment and rehabilitation methods continue to reduce the average daily population of our state hospitals," the Governor said, "even though admissions are rising more rapidly than the general population." Admissions to state hospitals in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1967, reached 40,977—up from 36,442 the previous year. But the average length of stay in fiscal 1966-67 fell to 67 days, 8 days fewer than in the previous year.

In reviewing a report from Dr. Alan D. Miller, commissioner of Mental Hygiene, Governor Rockefeller said that the Department of Mental Hygiene is focusing its attention this year on applying a comprehensive "systems of services" approach to the problem of mental disorders. The Governor noted that the new approach, developed by Dr. Miller, will strengthen New York State's position as a leader in the treatment of the mentally ill and mentally retarded. The comprehensive "system of services" approach is designed to provide more intensive and early treatment of patients, increase research and training, expand services available at state hospitals and state schools, establish home county units to make treatment available close to the homes of patients and create close working relationships between State Institutions and local service and educational institutions.

Commending Dr. Miller, Governor Rockefeller said, "The Department of Mental Hygiene's goal is to provide a full range of modern treatment and rehabilitation services for all persons who need them, when they need them, and for as long as they need them. The aim is to bring the best care possible to all State residents. I commend Dr. Miller on the Department's fine work, and especially for the progress it is making under his leadership in providing even better services."

Included in the report is the announcement that 99 per cent of the state's residents now reside in counties which provide local community mental health services. The Department of Mental Hygiene provides state aid to community mental health boards for these local services.

Programs Listed

Citing the Department for developing new kinds of community services, the Governor said that among the programs established in fiscal year 1967 were suicide prevention centers, half-way houses, training of non-professional mental health aides, emergency services, and services to special groups such as children, the elderly, alcoholics and narcotics addicts.

To enable more mentally ill people to be treated in the community, the Department is establishing community mental health centers throughout the state in cooperation with local community mental health boards, the federal government and local public and private service agencies. One center at Rochester General Hospital went into operation in fiscal year 1967. Eleven centers are presently under construction and 19 are in the planning stage.

The report to the Governor also described services for mentally retarded adults and children. State schools provided care and training for 29,882 retarded during fiscal 1966-67. A highlight of the year was the addition of a comprehensive "enrichment program" to State schools. The program included cultural activities, reading improvement courses, and vocational rehabilitation and training.

In cooperation with communities, the federal government and local agencies, the Department of Mental Hygiene is also establishing community mental health centers for the retarded throughout the state. One center for the retarded is already in operation in Nassau County, four more are under construction and ten are in the planning stage.

Dr. Miller also reported to the Governor that the Department was continuing to provide comprehensive educational and training programs for its employees and expanding its recruiting efforts. Many new positions were created in fiscal 1966-67—to improve patient care and treatment—and there are now more than 50,000 employees serving in the Department's hospitals, schools and central office.

Greater Dimes Support Finances More Centers

Increased public support has enabled the March of Dimes to finance nearly 100 birth defects treatment and research centers today as compared with 77 a year ago, according to Myer Kaplan, chairman, Ulster County Chapter March of Dimes.

Kaplan has just returned from the annual pre-campaign meeting of the voluntary health organization in New York City.

Pointing to the fact that national fund-raising increased during the past campaign for the third successive year, Kaplan predicted an increase in Ulster County during the 30th anniversary campaign next January.

The prediction was supported by Mrs. Chester Gaede and Mrs. Virginia Hyatt who attended the meeting.

"Birth defects is the great destroyer which snuffs out the lives of half-a-million unborn babies and kills 60,000 children and adults in this country each year," Kaplan stated.

Noting that more than 250,000 American babies are born with defects each year, he said that March of Dimes Defects Centers are developing new knowledge through clinical research and providing skilled treatment to children whose afflictions once were thought hopeless.

Scientists at March of Dimes centers are studying causes of defects and means of prevention, as well as improving diagnostic, surgical and rehabilitation techniques.

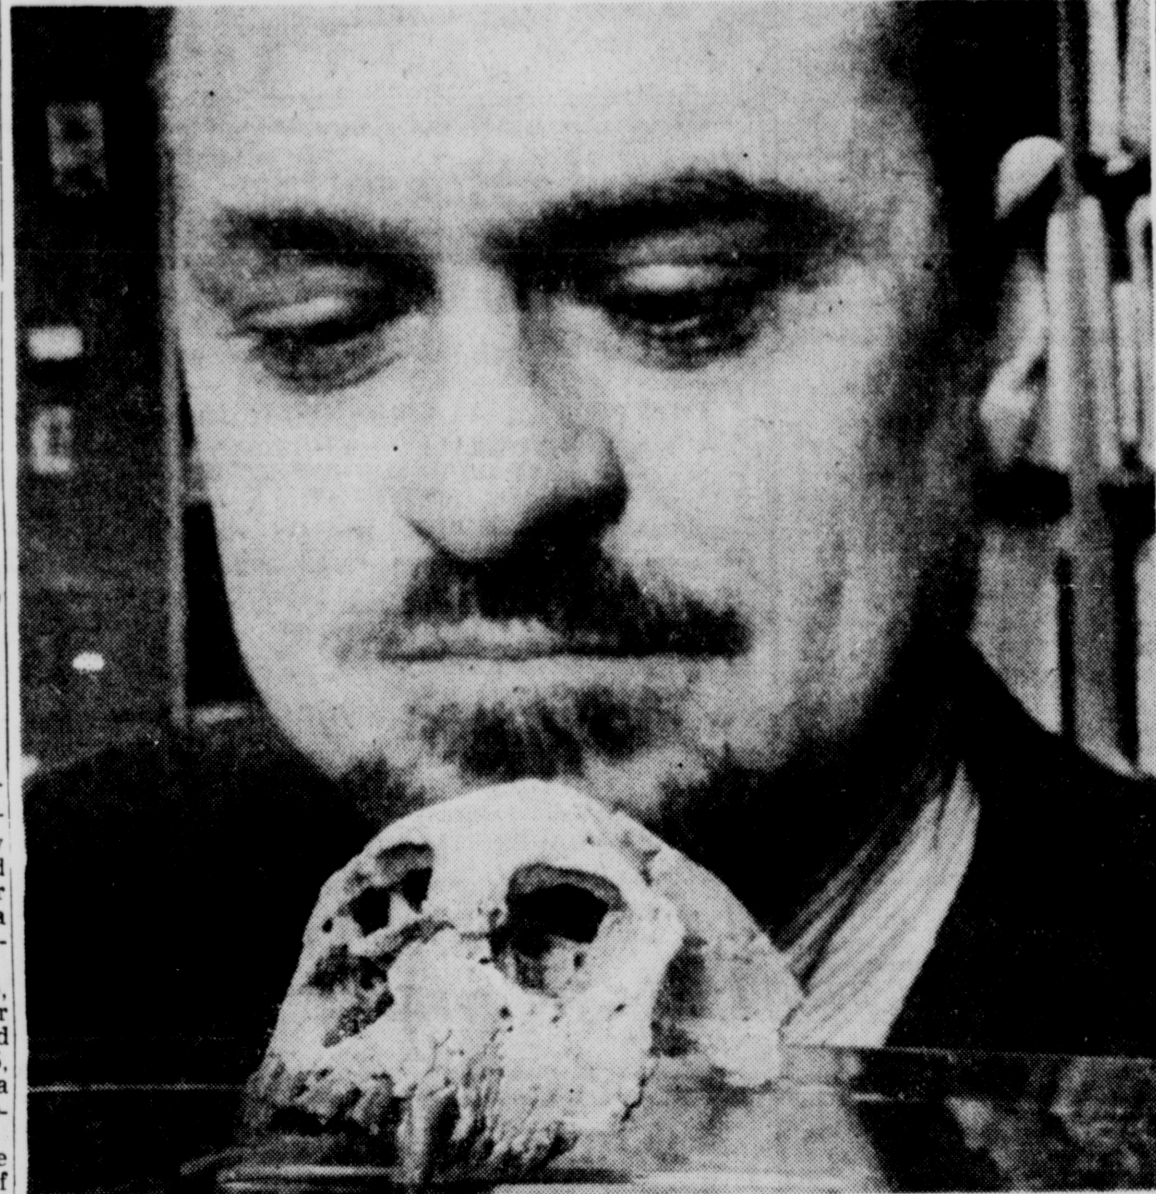

2 Troopers Hurt, Hit by Truck on Mass. Turnpike

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — Two state troopers were reported "comfortable" Thursday night after being hospitalized earlier in the day when their parked cruiser was struck by a trailer truck on the Massachusetts Turnpike in Blanford.

Trooper Albert C. Alben, 35, of Holyoke, was treated for head and chest injuries, and Trooper Joseph J. Dinatale, 25, of Fitchburg, was treated for a possible concussion, both at Holyoke's Providence Hospital.

Police said the driver of the truck, Henry B. Minshell, 36, of Valatie, N.Y., was charged with driving to endanger and released in $100 bail for an appearance Nov. 20 in Westfield District Court. Police said the cruiser was parked on a lane used by heavy trucks in negotiating hills when it was struck and moved 75 feet by the impact.

Overprotection Dangers Cited On Import Quota

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Farm economy could suffer deeply from efforts by protectionists to win establishment of import quotas, a government trade expert says. William M. Roth, U.S. Ambassador to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, raised that warning Thursday in a speech at the 100th anniversary of the National Grange, the third largest farmer organization in the nation.

In the United States alone, Roth asserted, "sectors of industry and agriculture have sponsored import-quota bills" that would create "take-it-or-leave-it markets" and increase the cost-price squeeze on farmers.

Roth said farmers were closely affected by the implications of foreign trade and had consistently fought "the coddling of American industry against foreign competition."

He said President Johnson's farm experts were preparing a bill that would:

—Abolish the so-called American selling price.

—Relax standards for government aid to firms and groups of workers adversely affected by imports.

—Restore the government's tariff negotiating authority, which expired June 30.

Roth cautioned those who favor higher protective tariffs to expect other nations to retaliate in kind if the higher tariffs are established.

Ask Attachment Law for Those On Medicaid

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The State Board of Social Services has proposed that wages and other income of Medicaid recipients in debt be legally subject to attachment by creditors. Those receiving public welfare, as well, however, would be exempt.

The proposal was approved unanimously at a meeting of the board here Thursday and will be forwarded to legislative and administrative leaders, a spokesman said.

Under the plan, the Department of Social Services would take no further action to implement a section of the Medicaid law barring income attachments for those benefiting by the medical aid program only.

Local Medicaid officials also would be informed to follow the same course.

It was best described, in my opinion, by the late Don Marquis, who was a columnist for many years before he repented and became a playwright. He said of his former occupation that it amounted to "digging a daily grave."

Some Misconceptions

There do seem to be some public misconceptions of a columnist's pattern of existence.

For example, some people feel he is a person who dwells in a penthouse, rides to work in a chauffeur-driven limousine, and has a salary adequate for the ransom of 12 captive princes. He is supposed to have lunch with industrial tycoons, spend his afternoons giving confidential advice to world-renowned diplomats and his evenings running his fingers through the minds, if any, of beautiful movie stars.

Beloved friends and dear questioners, that ain't quite the way a normal red-blooded American newspaper columnist really lives.

He lives, as most people do, on the edge of his personal desperation. He has two big problems in life: (1) to find a new idea each day that will save him from mental bankruptcy, and (2) to earn enough money to provide bread for his children and milk to keep his ulcers quiet.

His biggest yearning in life is somehow to find a way to surprise his wife with a fur coat — made of any kind of fur — before she expires.

The next-most-often-asked question that makes a newspaper columnist sigh is this one:

"What do you do besides writing your column?"

Clear Implication

The clear implication here is that it is somehow undignified or un-American for a man to do nothing but compose 500 words of prose a day, Monday through Friday. He is expected to have more than one arrow in his quiver.

Some columnists may do other things. Some moonlight by driving taxicabs over the weekend. Others try to achieve respectability by pretending they are writing a book.

The actual truth of the matter, however, is that a majority of columnists spend any spare time at their disposal in gnawing their fingernails or going to parties.

Several times a day a columnist gets by telegram or mail missives that begin:

"You are cordially invited to —"

"We'd be sincerely delighted to have your presence at —"

These invitations are for functions that run the full gamut from boredom to tedium.

In a single day it is possible for a columnist to be invited to the unveiling of a new tractor at the Waldorf, to gnaw cold salmon with a literary lion at the Plaza, or to act as a judge at the Americana in a contest to determine which secretary in Manhattan has the prettiest dimple on her left knee.

But a columnist's health is not measured by the number of cocktail parties he helps launch but by the number of such functions he has the strength to abstain from.

Most of the time he can have more fun just sitting there before an ominously silent typewriter, a vacant look on his face as he stares hopefully up at that same old familiar spot on the ceiling, wondering when the lightning will strike.

See you next Monday.

First Major Film on Vietnam Nearing Completion

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The first major film about the Vietnam war is nearing completion, thanks to the bulldog determination of actor-director John Wayne.

So far he has endured corporate indifference, a couple of vexing ailments, Army restrictions, the vagaries of Georgia weather and the taunts of anti-war zealots. Next week, after expending $4.5 million and four months of shooting time, he expects to complete "The Green Berets."

Finish at Studio

After 13 weeks at Ft. Benning, Ga., Wayne came back to Warner Bros.-Seven Arts Burbank studio for final scenes. Why the return?

"Georgia doubled fine for Vietnam until fall started and the leaves began turning. You don't get those reds and golds in the Vietnam foliage, so we decided to finish up at the studio."

The husky actor came back with a touch of laryngitis, acquired from three weeks' of night work in temperatures as low as 26 degrees. Rain often plagued the company, but Wayne kept working. He turned 60 last May but seems to have withstood the rigors of double duties.

Taking a rare break from production matters, Wayne discussed the stormy history of "The Green Berets." Last year the film was announced as a Universal production; later Wayne and his Batjac production moved the project to Warner Bros. What happened?

"I guess those guys at Universal were scared of it," said Wayne. "They think they can run the picture business by computers. Well I get news for them: It can't be done."

"I was in a meeting with them when they started making a big fuss over a $100,000 item in a $4.5-million budget. I figured they couldn't be very enthused about the project, so I let them off the hook. They grabbed at the chance."

The feeling in Hollywood is that many studios have shied away from Vietnam subjects on the grounds that it is an "unpopular war." Wayne has an answer to that:

Some Changes Made

"What the hell war hasn't been unpopular?"

After Wayne purchased the Robin Moore novel, "The Green Berets," he went to the Pentagon to seek cooperation on filming. He admitted that changes have been made, since the book was not entirely popular with the brass.

The Pentagon agreed to help Wayne, but military cooperation is not the same as in the World War II and postwar era, when studios could stage vast battle scenes with real troops.

"We received good treatment at Benning—within the letter of the law. We could use the Army equipment if it wasn't tied up in training and could shoot in areas that weren't being used by troops. But the soldiers weren't available to us—unless they could get a two or three-day pass. Then we paid them regular extra pay."

Dies in Fire

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — John F. Shay, 82, perished Thursday in a fire that destroyed the interior of his one-story frame home in suburban Amherst.

A fire official said the elderly man apparently had been smoking in bed. The flames spread from the bed to curtains and then throughout the house. There was no estimate of damage.

Shay's pet dog and cat also were killed.

YWCA Celebrates World Prayer Week

This week, Nov. 12-18, marks the 100th anniversary of World Week of Prayer and World Fellowship and is being celebrated simultaneously in more than 75 countries in the world. The Kingston YWCA commemorated this event with a program featuring Arnold Shien-vold, main speaker, and guitarist Rita Mary Senor.

Arnold Shien-vold spoke on his summer in Turkey as Ulster County's Ambassador to Turkey under the Experiment in International Living. In Izmir, Turkey, he lived with a Turkish family for five weeks. Arnold explained, "The homestay is the basis of the entire program of the Experiment in International Living. It is during this time that the person abroad gets to closely observe and study the habits and customs of the country he is visiting. Since I was in Izmir, which is the third largest city in Turkey,

I got the chance to study some city life. Most shopping is concentrated around the outdoor bazaar. This is because the best bargains can be obtained there. Because the temperature is so hot (in mid-afternoon the temperature is usually around 100 degrees) most of the shopping is done in the morning or evening."

Later, Rita Mary Senor with guitar and vocal selections entertained the members and friends of the Kingston YWCA. The afternoon program was concluded with refreshments of tea and a Turkish dessert.

Over 2,000,000 members of the YWCA are joining together this week to reaffirm their belief in World Fellowship and prayers of peace throughout the world. The YWCA believes in assuming its share in the world, and does extend its helping hand everywhere—to the illiterate young girls in Korea—to the 4-year-old who now attends nursery school in Bombay—to the rural program of nutrition in Uganda—to the vocational education for women and girls in Zambia and to the intensive programs for the Mothers' Clubs in Chile.

The YWCA is a member of the Ulster County Community Chest.

Grades 11 and 12 will be added in the two succeeding years.

Also on Mr. Nelson's immediate agenda are the location of temporary quarters for the school, now operating from 17 Pearl Street, and extensive travel to interview and select faculty members.

Program chairman Peggy Spratt announces that parents and other interested persons will hear an explanation of the school's future role in the Kingston area. President Len Waters will preside at a brief business meeting, after which refreshments will be served by the hospitality committee, headed by Marilyn Wakefield.

'Break the Jinx'—Cadet Chorus

Army Meets Pitt Panthers in Ninth Game

WEST POINT—"Break the Jinx" and "Remember 1963" are just a couple of the battle cries coming out of the Military Academy as the Army football team heads for Pittsburgh to face the Pitt Panthers Saturday in the ninth game of the 1967 grid season.

The Jinx which warrants so much emphasis by the Cadets is Pitt's ability to defeat Army at home. In the six meetings there, the Cadets have had to settle for ties in 1958 (14-14) and 1960 (7-7). The 1958 team went to Pitt with a 7-0 record and rebounded to beat Navy, 22 to 6, and permit Coach Earl Blaik to retire with an undefeated season. The 1960 team was 6-2, the tie and a 17-12 loss to Navy ending the season on a dull 6-3-1 note.

The year of 1963 parallels that of 1967 for that Army team went to Pitt with an identical 7-1 record. Pitt won, 28 to 0, the first time in 56 games that Army had failed to score. Two weeks later Navy won, 21 to 15, as the Cadets ran out of time with the ball in the shadow of the Middle goal and the season ended with a 7-3 mark in the record book.

Many Holdovers

The 1967 edition includes many players who figured in last year's 28 to 0 Army win at West Point. That's the biggest victory margin by a team of Coach Tom Cahill, who now has a 15-3 record as head mentor at Army.

Quarterback Steve Lindell passed for two touchdowns, kicked two field goals and two conversions in last year's game. End Terry Young caught four for 95 yards and one score while the other end Gary Steele had three for 36 yards and a score. The other two points came on a safety on a blocked punt.

Missing was fullback Charlie Jarvis, junior from Cornwells Heights, Pa., who was injured and missed three games in the middle of the 1966 season. The keystone State fans will see him this week.

Defense Dominates

While Army dominated the scoring last year, the defense played the greater part of the game. Linebacker Jim Bevens, tackle Elwood Cobey, middle guard Pat Mente and Bud Neswacheny, Army captain and The General, all had 35 minutes playing time in the 1966 game.

Coach Cahill had equal praise for his offensive and defensive units after last week's 22 to 0 victory over Utah. He plans no changes for the Pitt game which means that the same starters will go again. There haven't been too many changes at Army this fall. On offense, there has been some competition at tackle where Keith Harrelson and Bob Ivany have been pushed by Bill Jackson and Ted Shadid.

There was the quarterback problem which had sophomore Roger LeDoux producing the first two wins but Lindell and Jim O'Toole returning to take their one-two positions. On defense, Bob Gora and Elwood Cobey alternate at one tackle spot and injuries have taken two original starters out of the defensive secondary. Tom Halter replaced Jim McCall early and Dennis Hutchinson now fills in for the missing Hank Toczykowski.

Another Pennsylvanian who wasn't around last year is kicker Nick Kurliko from Wilkeson Borough. He holds the season field goal marks for Army, handles punting and kickoffs and is second to Jarvis in scoring with 34 points. Jarvis has 42.

LOTTIE BRUNN, GLOBETROTTERS ACT

Lottie Brunn, who rates with the finest woman jugglers of the world, is a new addition to the added variety show carried along by basketball's fabulous Harlem Globetrotters for between-halves presentation.

The Trotters will be in Kingston, Friday, Nov. 24 to meet the New York Nationals at the Kate Walton Field House in a benefit game for the YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County.

A veteran of the center ring of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus, Lottie has wowed critics around the world.

Said Variety, the trade magazine: "A standstill is the superlative juggling of Lottie Brunn, about the best feminine manipulator in the business. Attractive Lottie works quickly, shifting from stunt to stunt. Apparatus is variegated to heighten interest. "She gets a big hand for manipulating four balls and four rings at once, then five large multicolored balls, and finally six hoops. She is simply terrific."

That and the Globetrotters, too. Plus a Ulster County Community College preliminary on Nov. 24—the magic date.

Collegiate Hoople Selects USC to Win

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Peerless Predictor

Egad, friends, this is the week old grads will be talking about for the next 12 months. The schedule is loaded with interstate and intrastate rivalries that always bring out the crowd and the best in the gladiators.

Of course, on the high school level, only the traditional Thanksgiving Day games remain. Instead of picking the winners of these big ones, I have decided to select only this week's college games and leave the other forecasting to Ed Palladino, the famed harness racing expert. Harumph!

Palladino is still making calculations and doing other preliminary leg work and told me he will have the winners of those Turkey Day classics next Wednesday.

Getting together to settle their annual differences on the college level this weekend are such traditional foes as Southern California and UCLA, Tennessee and Mississippi, Texas

The Old Boy Himself

Christian, Washington and Washington State, Missouri and Nebraska, Northwestern and Illinois, Oklahoma and Kansas, Oregon and Oregon State and Utah and Utah State. Harumph!

These are the games in which past performances and season records mean nothing—it's "do or die" for Old Alma Mater and the devil take the hindmost—unkumph!

Notwithstanding the obvious uncertainties inherent in such situations, The Hoople System has some gilded predictions for you—kaff-kaff. Employing the same secret Hoople mathematical progression which correctly forecast Penn State's stunning upset of North Carolina State last Saturday, I predict that the nation's four major unbeaten elevens—UCLA (7-0-1), Indiana (8-0), North Texas St. (6-0-1) and Wyoming (9-0)—two will feel the lash of defeat.

Watch for Southern California to bump UCLA in a real Hollywood-type cliff-hanger, 22-21, and for the power-packed U. Texas-El Paso to outlast the Wyoming Cowboys in a free-scoring affair, 28-26—hak-haff.

Tennessee will move a step closer to the Southeastern throne by trouncing Ole Miss, 24-13. And North Texas State will retain its undefeated status by turning back Tulsa, 25-21, in Missouri Valley competition.

In the tight Big Ten race, Indiana will clinch a Rose Bowl berth by whipping Minnesota, 21-6, while its neighbor Purdue also undefeated in the Big Ten but prohibited from going to the Rose Bowl two years in a row will thrash Michigan State, 35-14—harumph!

Now on with the forecast: Alabama 29, So. Carolina 11, Syracuse 37, Boston College 18, N. C. State 31, Clemson 12, Dartmouth 30, Cornell 12, Florida 28, Kentucky 14, Notre Dame 35, Ga. No Bowl Game For the Cadets

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — There'll be no Sugar for the Army football team on New Year's Day, but the classy Cadets won't find a Pentagon "No Bowl" edict too hard to swallow—if they can make Pitt and Navy their cup of tea.

Cadet hopes for an unprecedented postseason appearance were dashed Thursday when Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor decreed that no bowl bids would be accepted by the U.S. Military Academy.

"It was concluded that accepting an invitation to play in a postseason bowl game would tend to emphasize football to an extent not consistent with the basic mission of the Academy, which is to produce career Army officers," the Pentagon statement read.

Army, driving toward its best season win-up in 18 years, reportedly had been in line for an invitation to the Sugar Bowl classic in New Orleans. Sugar Bowl officials had indicated strong interest in the Cadets, 7-1, should they get past Pitt Saturday.

While one Army bowl booster, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., was sharply critical of the decision, and vowed he would seek to have it changed, the Cadets themselves kept in step with the order from above.

Vocally disappointed Thursday morning when reports circulated that "people in high places" would reject an Army bowl appearance because of the Vietnam war, the Cadet Corps had regrouped by nightfall and were sighting their guns on Saturday's foe—and Navy.

Expansion Team Finally Catch Up With Rangers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Even the New York Rangers have fallen victim to the surprising West Division of the National Hockey League.

In another interdivisional game, the Detroit Red Wings and played scoreless hockey the tie.

The Flyers jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the opening period at Philadelphia on goals by defenseman Ed Van Impe and Leon Rochefort, the latter a former Ranger. New York cut the margin midway through the second period on Reg Fleming's marker, but Philadelphia got that one back later in the session when Ed Hoekstra beat Ed Giacomin, the Rangers' net-minder.

Defenseman Rod Seiling scored New York's second goal in the fifth minute of the third period.

Each of the five other older established clubs in the East Division had previously been defeated by an expansion team.

In the game at Oakland, each team scored in the first period and played scoreless hockey the rest of the way. Alain Caron's tip-in on a power play gave Oakland a 1-0 lead at 3:44 of the opening period and slightly more than two minutes later Gary Jarrett provided the equalizer with a 20-footer.

Rookies Roy Edwards of the Wings and Gary Smith of the Seals displayed flawless goaltending from then on. Edwards finished with 18 saves while Smith turned aside 21 shots including a sizzler by Gordie Howe late in the second period. The deadlock enabled Detroit to move into sole possession of second place in the East, one point behind pace-setting Toronto. Oakland now is tied for fifth with St. Louis in the expansion West Division.

Syracuse began the 1967 football season with 28 shutouts since 1949—the year when Coach Ben Schwartzwalder arrived on the scene. The Orange has been blanked only seven times.

ATLANTA FALCONS star Tommy Nobis (R) holds the turkey for co-captain Don Talbert's make-believe pot shot as the two former Texas University stars help Georgia State College's Pershing Rifles get their annual turkey shoot off to a good start. Neither Nobis nor Talbert would actually fire a rifle at turkey shaped targets. "I can't even see 'em," said Nobis. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

No Bowl, No Sugar

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Heavy metal sugar bowls, 324 of them, disappeared from the mess hall at the U.S. Military Academy Thursday morning, after a report that the Pentagon had ruled the Army football team couldn't appear in a post-season bowl game.

Sleepy cadets filing in for breakfast were greeted with a sign lettered in red and blue saying "No Sugar Bowl for the Army team, no sugar bowls for the Corps."

Sugar was heaped in mounds then comes Navy. Cadets said the Pentagon felt on plates. Army reportedly was in line that in view of the international situation, it would not be proper for the Army team to engage in a bowl game.

A cadet said the West Point Corps was particularly unhappy because a bowl game would have been Army's only hope for establishing a meaningful status. "Most of us want to see the team this year, since it hasn't played a single team with a winning record."

Army has won seven games and lost one to Duke, 10-7, this it would cut into Christmas fall. Saturday it plays Pitt, and leave time."

Hunters invading the Catskills when deer season opens for hunting. The opening Monday have an excellent chance of realizing a record Service policy which has previously closed lands under its Cray of Liberty, delegate of the Sullivan County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs.

Cray predicted today that this year's total bag could exceed the 1966 take of 6,145 deer during the current season which ends Dec. 5.

"Last year's mild winter and spring resulted in an excellent growing season for the deer herd. It produced a fine crop of good strong fawns and right now our herd is bigger than it has been in years. Good weather and decent hunting conditions could give us our best year yet."

The federation claims that Sullivan County has more deer per square mile of deer range than any area east of the Mississippi.

Cray pointed out that the opening of two additional areas in the county will afford hunters increased opportunity. The Lake Superior area in the township of Bethel which was taken over earlier this year by Christian, Washington and Washington State, Missouri and Nebraska, Northwestern and Illinois, Oklahoma and Kansas, Oregon and Oregon State and Utah and Utah State. Harumph!

These are the games in which past performances and season records mean nothing—it's "do or die" for Old Alma Mater and the devil take the hindmost—umkum!

Notwithstanding the obvious uncertainties inherent in such situations, The Hoopie System has some gilt-edged predictions for you—kaff-kaff.

Employing the same secret Hoopie mathematical progression which correctly forecast Penn State's stunning upset of North Carolina State last Saturday, I predict that the nation's four major unbeaten eleven—UCLA (7-0-1), Indiana (8-0-1), North Texas St. (6-0-1) and Wyoming (9-0)—two will feel the lash of defeat.

Watch for Southern California to bump UCLA in a real Hollywood-type cliff-hanger, 22-21, and for the power-packed U. Texas-El Paso to outlast the Wyoming Cowboys in a free-scoring affair, 28-26—hak-haff.

Tennessee will move a step closer to the Southeastern throne by trouncing Ole Miss, 24-13. And North Texas State will retain its undefeated status by turning back Tulsa, 25-21, in Missouri Valley competition.

In the tight Big Ten race, Indiana will clinch a Rose Bowl berth by whipping Minnesota, 21-6, while its neighbor Purdue, also undefeated in the Big Ten but prohibited from going to the Rose Bowl two years in a row, will thrash Michigan State, 35-14—harumph!

Now on with the forecast: Alabama 29, So. Carolina 11

Expansion Team Finally Catch Up With Rangers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Even the New York Rangers have fallen victim to the surprising West Division of the National Hockey League.

The Rangers, unbeaten in four starts against the new expansion teams, were upended by the Philadelphia Flyers 3-2 in one of the two games on Thursday night's schedule.

In another interdivisional game, the Detroit Red Wings and played scoreless hockey tie.

The Flyers jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the opening period at Philadelphia on goals by defenseman Ed Van Impe and Leon Rochefort, the latter a former Ranger. New York cut the margin midway through the second period on Reg Fleming's marker, but Philadelphia got that one back later in the session when Ed Hoekstra beat Ed Giacomin, the Rangers' netminder.

Defenseman Rod Seiling scored New York's second goal in the fifth minute of the third period.

Each of the five other older established clubs in the East Division had previously been defeated by an expansion team.

In the game at Oakland, first team scored in the first period and played scoreless hockey the rest of the way. Alain Caron's tip-in on a power play gave Oakland a 1-0 lead at 3:44 of the opening period and slightly more than two minutes later Gary Jarrett provided the equalizer with a 20-footer.

Rookies Roy Edwards of the Wings and Gary Smith of the Seals displayed flawless goaltending from then on. Edwards finished with 18 saves while Smith turned aside 21 shots including a sizzler by Gordie Howe late in the second period.

The deadlock enabled Detroit to move into sole possession of second place in the East, one point behind pace-setting Toronto.

UCCC Cagers in Globetrotter Preliminary Tilt

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

All the stars and headliners on Friday, Nov. 24 at the Kate Walton Field House won't be solely in the Harlem Globetrotter lineup.

In a 6:45 preliminary game that same evening, coach Mike Perry will unveil his Ulster Community Senators for the first time. To say that Perry is looking forward to the season is an understatement.

Best Record Ever
Last year the Senators produced a 16-8 record, the best the school has ever had. Only Brad Meyer, a rugged rebounder and double figure scorer is missing from the starting lineup.

Returnees include Rod Chando, 5-9, formerly of Marlboro Central; Bill Zilliox, 6-2, ex-Westchester County Star at Harrison High; Stan Henderson, West Chester High, Pa. graduate; Bill Boines, 6-2, of Andrew Jackson High in the Bronx and Frank Roselli, the six foot ace from Tottenville High, Staten Island.

This all-star cast is enough to make Perry optimistic, despite the most rugged schedule in the school's brief history. But, he also has a host of newcomers, all of them capable performers.

Heading the cast is Jumpin' Joe Uhl, the all-time scoring leader at Kingston High School. Uhl broke every record in the Kingston City League last year and has one season of eligibility with the Senators.

Leon Hanna, the 6-3 backboard bearcat, is another newcomer. Like Uhl, Hanna was the "Player of the Year" in the DUSO. He's expected to give the Senators some needed rebounding help and should offset the loss of Meyer.

Other Newcomers
Ty Quill, 5-7, former Beacon High star and hustling Mike Derrenbacher, 5-7, a member of that triple threat championship club last season at Kingston; Frank Horn and Fred White, a pair of 6-2 stalwarts from DeWitt Clinton High in the Bronx; Bill DuBois, 5-7 former Kingston High performer and 6-6 Al Overbey of Beacon complete the roster. Like most coaches, Perry isn't ready to predict a tremendous season for his club. However, he can't wait for the opener.

Ulster will oppose highly touted Post Junior College of Connecticut in a 6:45 preliminary to the Globetrotter tussle. The visitors posted a 19-2 record in the Community College tourney the following week.

Scheduled are 10 contests in the Mid-Hudson Conference as well as some non-league tilts. "The boys have been working hard and the talent has been blending well together. However, we have a long season and a back-breaking schedule and it's hard to predict how successful it will be," Perry said.

There are 28 regular season games on tap. Included are the Senators' Christmas Tournament on Dec. 21-22 at the Municipal Auditorium and the Suffolk County College tourney the following week.

Storm Signals In AB League

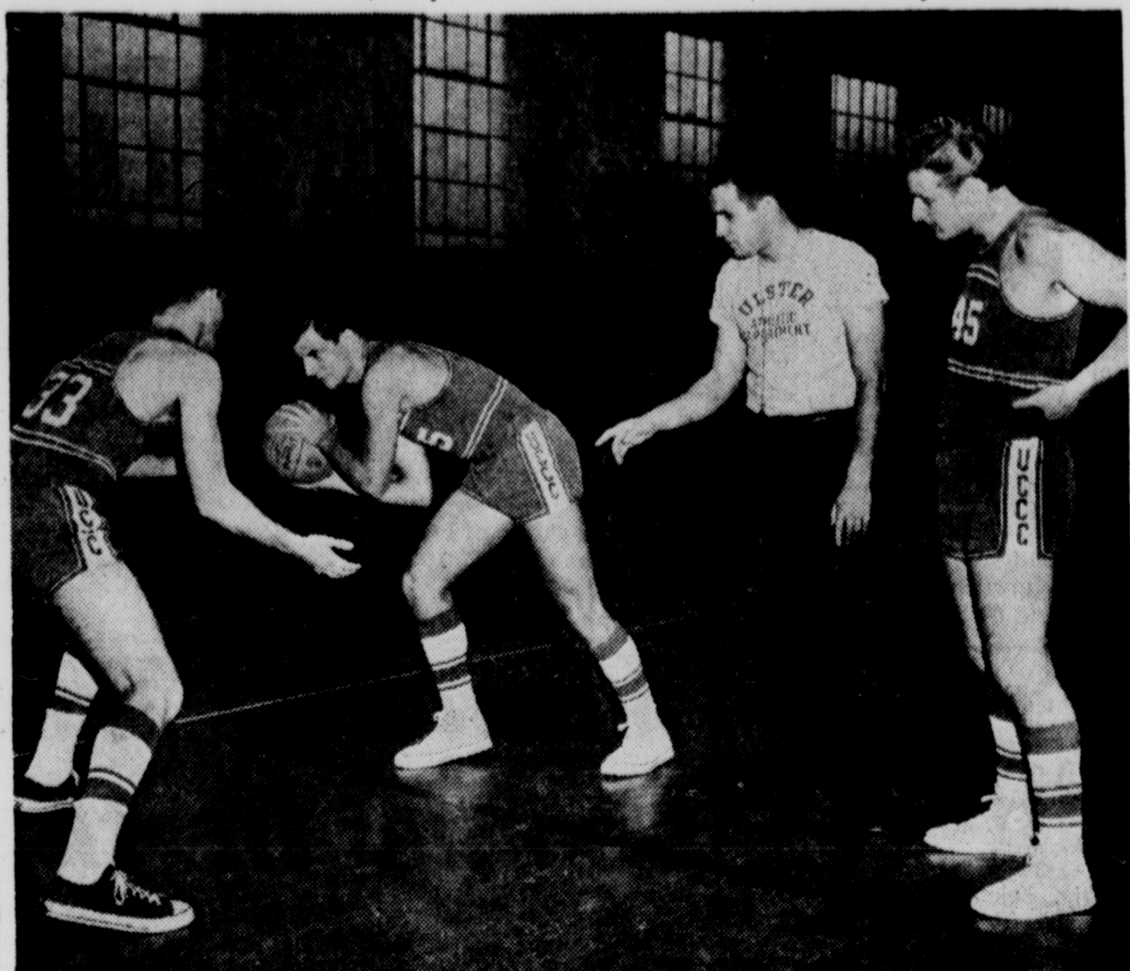

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The new American Basketball Association is having attendance problems, Commissioner George Mikan readily admits, but he says they are predictable and there is no financial panic.

Citing such factors as "selling a new product," scheduling difficulties in arenas in the 11 ABA cities and bucking football and hockey for the entertainment dollar early in the season, Mikan candidly admitted in an interview, "We knew we were going to have problems."

"It's been represented to me by the trustees of the league that they will operate for three years," Mikan said. "They are financially able to do so. Each team has posted a $100,000 bond to guarantee the complete operation for one year."

"Right now, we're in constant contact with all our people, and they are working toward getting past the football season. We want to get into the true basketball season to get a complete picture."

"We're cognizant of the fact that we're not drawing right now, but we're hopeful it will improve. We realize we have scheduling problems. We had to accept dates in arenas that were already full, and in many cases we were stuck with secondary dates."

SAYS:

Quarterbacks Can Come From Nowhere

The pro football quarterback may be the strangest animal in captivity.

He is certainly the hardest to draft. There is no stereotyping him. You never know where he'll come from or where he'll go. And the greatest pro quarterback in history may be someone who is today a plumber or insurance salesman because he never got a chance. Or, if he got the chance, blew it.

LARRY RAKESTRAW proved the other day what Johnny Unitas proved about 10 years ago—and what John Huarte is still trying to prove, given the chance—he can make it.

Rakestraw, who was once on the Chicago Bears' taxi squad for two years, took over when Jack Concannon was injured in the first period. Rakestraw passed for three touchdowns and ran for two others to lead the Bears to a 34-7 win over the Giants.

He provided what I like to call momentum and inspired confidence in both his teammates and coaches. I was glad to see Larry do so well, since he followed me as the quarterback at Georgia. However, he could have chosen another team to do it against. But that's beside the point.

JOHN HUARTE is still trying to prove that he can cut it with the pros. He was dropped by the New York Jets and Patriots. Now he is on the Philadelphia Eagles' taxi squad. He's got the desire and confidence and those are the quarterback's prime requisites.

When a quarterback comes to camp, everyone knows he can throw, otherwise he wouldn't be there. But there are, as everyone also knows, the intangibles that make or break a pro quarterback. He's got to be a leader. He has to be able to "move" the ball and must also have a great love for the game—to study it from every aspect.

There are arrogant, "feisty" quarterbacks like Bobby Layne. There are mild-mannered ones like Unitas and Bart Starr. There are the aged ones like Y. A. Tittle. But there are very few young ones. Last year, for example, over half the starting National Football League quarterbacks were over 30.

SOME QUARTERBACKS come to camp as the top draft choices and stay. Like John Brodie and Roman Gabriel. Others are the No. 1 choice, but don't stay—like Huarte, Glynn Griffing, Terry Baker and Sonny Gibbs. Then there are the "surprises," like Unitas and Jim Hart, all free agents and Starr, a 17th round choice.

To start off well is usually of utmost importance to a young quarterback. Rakestraw made a big play soon after he entered the game. He called a perfect play, a fake draw to the halfback, rolled out and hit Ronnie Bull for an easy touchdown. That created an impetus. Hart, who got his chance when Charley Johnson was called into the army, did something similar against Green Bay recently. The Cardinals were losing 14-8. Hart passed into the strength of the zone defense. By a quirk of fate, Dave Williams made a great catch in a crowd and went for a TD. From then on, Hart was hot as a firecracker.

If the pass had been intercepted, Hart may have lost his confidence.

I GOT MY BREAK, in my rookie year, when George Shaw got hurt. He was the first string quarterback with the Vikings. In an exhibition game with the Rams, we were losing 21-0 in the third period and I helped get 17 points on the board. We lost, 21-17, but I did my job.

Who knows? If I had a day like I did against the Bears when I completed only five of 20 passes, I might have gone back to the bench—then out of football within a few years. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

An event of great sports and social significance occurred in mid-afternoon today in the editorial office of the Daily Freeman.

Our long frustrated, would-be deerslayer, Albert J. Cawein of Blue Mountain, the assistant city editor, took his annual leave in search of the elusive deer.

With Cawein in this annual ritual went the well wishes of his editorial cronies. Member clubs of the Federated Sportsmen of Ulster County, especially the Saugerties Fish and Game Club, wired messages of encouragement. The zoning board of the Town of Saugerties said it wished it could do more than just say good luck to their associate.

Old Rip, who holds down this corner every Wednesday, took a jaundiced view of the whole affair.

"If that fellow shoots a deer, it will be the biggest story since David and Goliath," he snorted.

CAWEIN'S FUTILE and relentless search for his first set of antlers makes Jason's legendary search for the Golden Fleece seem like a weekend Boy Scout encampment. Few deer hunters, Cawein included, bother to add up the hours they spend seeking even a glimpse of their quarry. They might be amazed if they did. Aside from the preparation and cost involved in any deer hunt, how many of them, who take to the deer trails annually, get a shot at a deer the first day, or the second, or third?

It is not uncommon for hunters to spend days, weeks (yeah, even years) in deer habitat without even seeing a single animal, much less shooting at one. True, there are those who meet with success when the season is barely a few hours old, but these by no means constitute the majority.

AS CAWEIN and other nimrods have learned the bitter way, deer are elusive, intelligent animals, capable of taking care of themselves in their own environment. All things being equal, they are not seen with routine frequency, and when they do expose themselves, they are not usually easy targets.

Tony Pizzarelli of West Hurley, the Woodstock Country Club president for example admits waiting 25 years for his first buck. Others have waited even longer.

In view of the time spent by most hunters in their quest for a trophy buck or antlerless deer, it is difficult to understand why so many give up that quest after having fired the first shot and a seemingly unscathed deer has bounded away.

Too many hunters fail to follow through with a systematic examination of the area. If the deer has not slumped in its tracks, they assume the shot missed, and they continue on with the hunt. Yet, a trophy buck could be down only 60 yards away.

BROTHER CAWEIN cannot be faulted on this score. He has never seen a deer in the woods let alone fire a shot at one. He is honest enough to admit this embarrassing fact. Thank heaven, though, he has never succumbed to that strange hunting phenomena known as "early blur." It is now a known fact that, under certain conditions, a person has the ability to see objects he wants to see. Basically, it's a state of mind.

Take a long time, frustrated deer hunter like our Al. He's excited, keyed up and burning to get that deer. He wants one more than anything else. Even more than a total Republican sweep in Saugerties. He's out early. Visibility is poor in the gray dawn. Perhaps, it's raining. He hears a noise or sees a movement.

It could be another hunter, posed on a stand or stalking his quarry. The desire for a deer is so strong that the observers mind actually sees what he is looking for—the form of a deer. A shot is fired and a man slumps to the ground, wounded or dead. Not our Al, though. All he sees are trees, rocks, sticks, grass and clouds. No "early blur" for him.

TAKE HEART, DEERSLAYER. pal. We of editorial—Ed Palladino, Walt Clark, Charlie Bernpohl, Hugh Reynolds, Ray Tyson, Pete Barrecchia, Tobie Geertsema, Joan Woinoski, Dottie Narel, Jean Dolan, Irwin Thomas, Lynn Mulvaney—we fervently wish you Godspeed.

When you go forth into the wilds Monday, we stand firmly behind you. As a matter of fact, anytime you are out alone with your God in the wilderness, loaded down with gear and high powered artillery, that's exactly where we want to be... behind you.

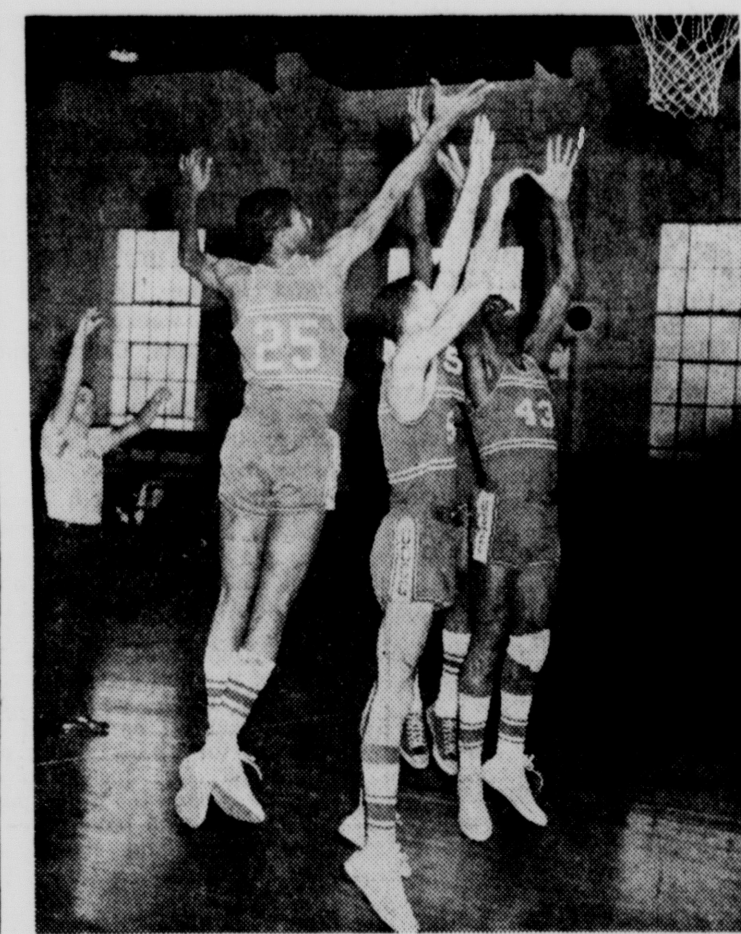

Spare Turnout Stirrs Rockets

SEATTLE (AP) — In their 10th home games this season, the San Diego Rockets averaged about 5,000 fans and lost all 10 games.

In their 11th game at home Thursday night, only 3,162 fans showed up at the San Diego International Sports Arena, but they pulled the Rockets to their first home win — a 99-81 National Basketball Association victory over the Chicago Bulls.

It was the only NBA game played.

A jump shot and a layin by Don Kojis and a jumper by Green with about two minutes to play pulled the Rockets to ahead after the Bulls closed to within two at 87-85.

Romulus Hanover Cane Pick

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Cane Futurity pace Saturday night at Yonker Raceway will have a multitude of interests, including a $150,000 purse, the third gem of racing's Triple Crown and Romulus Hanover. It will lack one—betting.

Trainer-driver Billy Haughton has Romulus back in the winner's circle and the son of Dancer Hanover-Romola Hanover has two fast entrants to back him up in the classic for 3-year-old sidewheelers.

The track forsook a large minus pool and decided to close the pari-mutuel windows for the race, highlight of weekend harness action in New York State.

Romulus, full brother of Romeo Hanover, winner of last year's Triple Crown, won the first leg, the Messenger Stakes, 4-furlong on the 16th.

Tied with Casper and Collett were Ray Floyd and Ken Still, who combined to shoot a 33-36 in the unique event.

Casper, Collett Share Haig Lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif., (AP) — Billy Casper isn't just one of the best professional golfers around. He also knows how to pick partners.

Casper picked a good friend, Don Collett, as his partner for the $115,000 Haig Scotch Golf Championship and after Thursday's first round the pair shared the lead. But it took a putting lesson to get there.

Collett missed a 4-foot birdie putt on the second hole Thursday and then missed a 10-foot downhill putt on the fourth. So Casper told his friend, a pro at Brae Burn Country Club in Houston, Tex., to slow down his putting stroke.

The advice seemed to work wonders.

Collett proceeded to sink four birdie putts — a 6-footer on the sixth, an 18-footer on the 11th, a 25-footer on the 12th and a 4-footer on the 16th.

So the pair counted the par 36-36—72, 6,881-yard La Costa course with 34-36—66.

Tied with Casper and Collett were Ray Floyd and Ken Still, who combined to shoot a 33-36 in the unique event.

Saturday's Heroes Smelling the Roses

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roses will be blooming in the thoughts of UCLA, Southern California, Indiana and Minnesota football players Saturday, but for Army, no matter what happens, the season will be one of bittersweet memories.

Top-ranked UCLA will battle No. 4 Southern California in Los Angeles, with a Rose Bowl invitation and probable national championship at stake.

The other Rose Bowl berth will be decided at the Indiana-Minnesota game at Minneapolis. Even if third-ranked Purdue beats Michigan State Saturday and then fifth-ranked Indiana the following weekend, the Boilermakers will be ineligible for the Rose Bowl under Big Ten rules because they played in the last one.

But Army has nothing to look forward to but victories at Pittsburgh Saturday and over Navy Dec. 2 for a 9-1 record, the best at West Point since the 1949 team was 9-0.

Some of the sweetness went out of the Cadets' season Thursday when the Pentagon announced the Army football team will not accept a bid to the Sugar Bowl or any other postseason game. The Sugar Bowl had indicated an interest in inviting the Cadets.

Other games involving Top Ten team Saturday:

Second-ranked Tennessee plays Mississippi at Memphis, Tenn.; No. 6 Wyoming is at Texas-El Paso at night; seventh-ranked Oklahoma is at home against Kansas; No. 8 Oregon State, which has beaten Purdue and Southern Cal and Few deer hunters, Cawein included, bother to add up the hours they spend seeking even a glimpse of their quarry. They might be amazed if they did. Aside from the preparation and cost involved in any deer hunt, how many of them, who take to the deer trails annually, get a shot at a deer the first day, or the second, or third?

It is not uncommon for hunters to spend days, weeks (yeah, even years) in deer habitat without even seeing a single animal, much less shooting at one. True, there are those who meet with success when the season is barely a few hours old, but these by no means constitute the majority.

AS CAWEIN AND other nimrods have learned the bitter way, deer are elusive, intelligent animals, capable of taking care of themselves in their own environment. All things being equal, they are not seen with routine frequency, and when they do expose themselves, they are not usually easy targets.

Tony Pizzarelli of West Hurley, the Woodstock Country Club president for example admits waiting 25 years for his first buck. Others have waited even longer.

In view of the time spent by most hunters in their quest for a trophy buck or antlerless deer, it is difficult to understand why so many give up that quest after having fired the first shot and a seemingly unscathed deer has bounded away.

Too many hunters fail to follow through with a systematic examination of the area. If the deer has not slumped in its tracks, they assume the shot missed, and they continue on with the hunt. Yet, a trophy buck could be down only 60 yards away.

BROTHER CAWEIN cannot be faulted on this score. He has never seen a deer in the woods let alone fire a shot at one. He is honest enough to admit this embarrassing fact. Thank heaven, though, he has never succumbed to that strange hunting phenomena known as "early blur." It is now a known fact that, under certain conditions, a person has the ability to see objects he wants to see. Basically, it's a state of mind.

Take a long time, frustrated deer hunter like our Al. He's excited, keyed up and burning to get that deer. He wants one more than anything else. Even more than a total Republican sweep in Saugerties. He's out early. Visibility is poor in the gray dawn. Perhaps, it's raining. He hears a noise or sees a movement.

It could be another hunter, posed on a stand or stalking his quarry. The desire for a deer is so strong that in the observers mind actually sees what he is looking for—the form of a deer. A shot is fired and a man slumps to the ground, wounded or dead. Not our Al, though. All he sees are trees, rocks, sticks, grass and clouds. No "early blur" for him.

TAKE HEART, DEERSLAYER. We of editorial—Ed Palladino, Walt Clark, Charlie Bernphol, Hugh Reynolds, Ray Tyson, Pete Barroccchia, Tobie Gerstemea, Joan Woinowski, Dottie Narel, Jean Dolan, Irwin Thomas, Lynn Mulvaney—we fervently wish you Godspeed.

When you go forth into the wilds Monday, we stand firmly behind you. As a matter of fact, anytime you are out alone with your God in the wilderness, loaded down with gear and high powered artillery, that's exactly where we want to be... behind you.

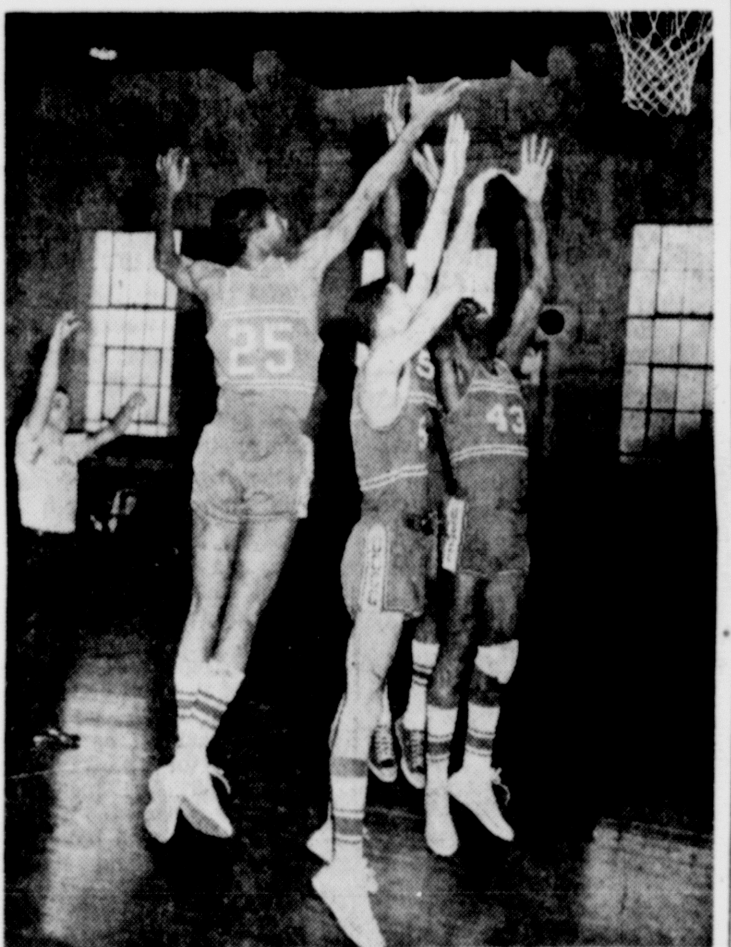

Sparse Turnout Stirs Rockets

SEATTLE (AP) — In their first 10 home games this season, the San Diego Rockets averaged about 5,000 fans and lost all 10 games.

In their 11th game at home Thursday night, only 3,162 fans showed up at the San Diego International Sports Arena, but to play pulled the Rockets this time the Rockets won — a 99-91 National Basketball Association victory over the Chicago Bulls.

It was the only NBA game played.

A jump shot and a layin by Don Kojis and a jumper by Green with about two minutes ahead after the Bulls closed to within two at 87-83.

Romulus Hanover Cane Pick

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cane Futurity pace Saturday night at Yonker Race way will have a multitude of interests, including a $150,000 purse, the third gem of racing's Triple Crown and Romulus Hanover. It will lack one—betting.

Trainer-driver Billy Haughton has Romulus back in the winner's circle and the son of Dancer Hanover-Romola Hanover has two fast entrants to back him up in the classic for 3-year-old sidewheelers.

The track favors a large minus pool and decided to close the pari-mutuel windows for the race, highlight of weekend harness action in New York State.

Romulus, full brother of last year's Triple Crown, won the first leg, the Messenger Stakes at Roosevelt Raceway, but failed in the second gem, the Little Brown Jug at Delaware, Ohio, won by Best of All. After two heats in the latter race, Romulus was found to be running a fever.

Casper, Collett Share Haig Lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif., (AP) — Billy Casper isn't just one of the best professional golfers around. He also knows how to pick partners.

Casper picked a good friend, Don Collett, as his partner for the $115,000 Haig Scotch Golf Championship and after Thursday's first round the pair shared the lead. But it took a putting lesson to get there.

Collett missed a 4-foot birdie putt on the second hole Thursday and then missed a 10-foot downhill putt on the fourth. So Casper told his friend, a pro at Brae Burn Country Club in Houston, Tex., to slow down his putting stroke.

The advice seemed to work wonders. Collett proceeded to sink four birdie putts — a 6-footer on the sixth, an 18-footer on the 11th, a 25-footer on the 12th and a 4-footer on the 16th.

So the pair conquered the par 36-36 — 72, 6,881-yard La Costa course with 34-66.

AFL—SAN DIEGO AT KANSAS CITY

The Chiefs should be coming on, while the Chargers could be losing steam from their quick start. Ladd-Buchanan combo didn't scare quarterback Hadl last time they met, but now they've had time to synchronize. And KC's running game should be on all cylinders against the Charger penetrable front.

NFL—WASHINGTON AT DALLAS

Skins seem to have a faculty of doing everything but win games. Last few years, their battles with Cowboys have been thrilling cliffhangers. Lost in last 10 seconds earlier this year. If they lose again, they're wiped out for '67. But Cowboys have Don Mededith running their complex attack again, and they're on friendly grounds.

DALLAS 24, WASHINGTON 20 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

FRAN TARKENTON SAYS:

Quarterbacks Can Come From Nowhere

The pro football quarterback may be the strangest animal in captivity.

He is certainly the hardest to draft. There is no stereotyping him. You never know where he'll come from or where he'll go. And the greatest pro quarterback in history may be someone who is today a plumber or insurance salesman because he never got a chance. Or, if he got the chance, blew it.

LARRY RAKESTRAW proved the other day what Johnny Unitas proved about 10 years ago—and what John Huarte is still trying to prove, given the chance—he can make it.

Rakestraw, who was once on the Chicago Bears' taxi squad for two years, took over when Jack Concannon was injured in the first period. Rakestraw passed for three touchdowns and ran for two others to lead the Bears to a 34-7 win over the Giants.

He provided what I like to call momentum and inspired confidence in both his teammates and coaches. I was glad to see Larry do so well, since he followed me as the quarterback at Georgia. However, he could have chosen another team to do it against. But that's beside the point.

JOHN HUARTE is still trying to prove that he can cut it with the pros. He was dropped by the New York Jets and Patriots. Now he is on the Philadelphia Eagles' taxi squad. He's got the desire and confidence and those are the quarterback's prime requisites.

When a quarterback comes to camp, everyone knows he can throw, otherwise he wouldn't be there. But there are, as everyone also knows, the intangibles that make or break a pro quarterback. He's got to be a leader. He has to be able to "move" the ball and must also have a great love for the game—to study it from every aspect.

There are arrogant, "feisty" quarterbacks like Bobby Layne. There are mild-mannered ones like Unitas and Bart Starr. There are the aged ones like Y. A. Tittle. But there are very few young ones. Last year, for example, over half the starting National Football League quarterbacks were over 30.

SOME QUARTERBACKS come to camp as the top draft choices and stay. Like John Brodie and Roman Gabriel. Others are the No. 1 choice, but don't stay—like Huarte, Glynn Griffith, Terry Baker and Sonny Gibbs. Then there are the "surprises," like Unitas and Jim Hart, all free, agents and Starr, a 17th round choice.

To start off well is usually of utmost importance to a young quarterback. Rakestraw made a big play soon after he entered the game. He called a perfect play, a fake draw to the halfback, rolled out and hit Ronnie Bull for an easy touchdown. That created an impetus. Hart, who got his chance when Charley Johnson was called into the army, did something similar against Green Bay recently. The Cardinals were losing 14-3. Hart passed into the strength of the zone defense. By a quirk of fate, Dave Williams made a great catch in a crowd and went for a TD. From then on, Hart was hot as a firecracker.

If the pass had been intercepted, Hart may have lost his confidence.

I GOT MY BREAK, in my rookie year, when George Shaw got hurt. He was the first string quarterback with the Vikings. In an exhibition game with the Rams, we were losing 21-0 in the third period and I helped get 17 points on the board. We lost 21-17, but I did my job.

Who knows? If I had a day like I did against the Bears when I completed only five of 20 passes, I might have gone back to the bench—then out of football within a few years.

Saturday's Heroes Smelling the Roses

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

Roses will be blooming in the thoughts of UCLA, Southern California, Indiana and Minnesota football players Saturday, but for Army, no matter what happens, the season will be one of bitter-sweet memories.

Top-ranked UCLA will battle No. 4 Southern California in Los Angeles, with a Rose Bowl invitation and probable national championship at stake.

The other Rose Bowl berth will be decided at the Indiana-Minnesota game at Minneapolis. Even if third-ranked Purdue beats Michigan Saturday and then fifth-ranked Indiana the following weekend, the Boilermakers will be ineligible for the Rose Bowl under Big Ten rules because they played in the last one.

But Army has nothing to look forward to but victories at Pittsburgh Saturday and over Navy Dec. 2 for a 9-1 record, the best at West Point since the 1949 team was 9-0.

Some of the sweetness went out of the Cadets' season Thursday when the Pentagon announced the Army football team will not accept a bid to the Sugar Bowl or any other postseason game. The Sugar Bowl had indicated an interest in inviting the Cadets.

Other games involving Top Ten team Saturday.

Second-ranked Tennessee plays Mississippi at Memphis, Tenn.; No. 6 Wyoming is at Texas-El Paso at night; seventh-ranked Oklahoma is at home against Kansas; No. 8 Oregon State, which has beaten Purdue and Southern Cal and

Winners' Weekend Looms in the NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — Balti-

St. Louis should roll along in the

the New York Jets and Oakland

in the American Football

into the home stretch of the

Thanks to Murray Rose's expert 9-1-2 job while the old

Hand-picker was battling the flu bug, the season record is up to 72-26-9 (46-19-7 in the NFL, 26-7-2 in the AFL). All the games this weekend are Sunday. Let's take another guess:

NFL

Baltimore 24, Detroit 14—John

Lions' tight defense. Mel Farr

ed, playing consistent ball.

Lions must go to well again

Thursday at home against

Rams.

Los Angeles 31, Atlanta 10—

First of two between same clubs in next three weeks. Rams should run up early lead and ease up for Thanksgiving date in Detroit. Les Josephson and Dick Bass pack too much punch for Falcons who have given up more points and scored less than any in NFL.

Cleveland 21, Minnesota 17—

Loss of Ernie Green and Erich

Barnes hurts battered Browns but Frank Ryan should get enough help from Leroy Kelly and Garry Collins. Browns won presession game 42-14.

Philadelphia 24, New Orleans

21—Eagles are hurting but

them once 31-24. Eagles' injury-riddled defensive backfield open invitation for Jerry Cuozzo. But

Philadelphia has way of snapping out of it at Franklin Field.

Anything can happen.

St. Louis 20, Chicago 17—

Cards have Johnny Roland to run at Bears, giving Jim Hart a chance to exploit passing game.

Bears racked up Fran Tarkenton

last week but Cards have superior offensive line, despite off day against Steelers.

Green Bay 28, San Francisco

14—Last Green Bay home game until Dec. 17, San Francisco in three-game losing slump get

Dave Parks back. How many can Travis Williams run back this week?

Dallas 35, Washington 28—Another wild one. Cowboys seem to be having troubles getting out for the Broncos last week. No offense either side. Lou Saban's

wins. Redskins could upset with

Oakland 35, Miami 14—After a week off it will be difficult to hold Raiders in check but they

at Kansas City.

New York 27, Boston 20—Joe

Namath threw for two TDs in 30-23 victory over Pats at Shea,

Oct. 29. Mike Holovak experimenting with Don Trull over

Babe Parilli but Pats hurting physically.

Kansas City 27, San Diego 21

—Battered Chiefs reverse earlier 45-31 defeat and climb back into race. Hank Stram still has shot at Super Bowl if he beats

Chargers Sunday and Oakland next Thursday. Chiefs must

ANOTHER DOVE — North Texas State football fans thought they would never see the likes of another John Dove, the Washington Redskins all around rookie star, but Ronnie Shanklin, shown here, is about to change their thinking. Shanklin has caught 36 passes for 671 yards and 9 touchdowns helping the Eagles to a 6-0 unbeaten record and in position to win the Missouri Valley Conference title in a showdown against Tulsa Saturday. Winners' Weekend Looms in the NFL

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore, Green Bay, Dallas and St. Louis should roll along in the National Football League and the New York Jets and Oakland in the American Football League as the pro teams head into the home stretch of the schedule Sunday.

Thanks to Murray Rose's expert 9-1-2 job while the old Hand-picker was battling the flu bug, the season record is up to 72-26-9 (46-19-7 in the NFL, 26-7-2 in the AFL). All the games this weekend are Sunday. Let's take another guess:

NFL

Baltimore 24, Detroit 14—John Unitas usually finds chinks in Lions' tight defense. Mel Farr will find Colts tough to run against. Baltimore still unbeaten, playing consistent ball. Lions must go to well against Thursday at home against Rams.

Los Angeles 31, Atlanta 10—First of two between same clubs in next three weeks. Rams should run up early lead and ease up for Thanksgiving date in Detroit. Les Josephson and Dick Bass pack too much punch for Falcons who have given up more points and scored less than any in NFL.

Cleveland 21, Minnesota 17—Loss of Ernie Green and Erich Barnes hurts battered Browns but Frank Ryan should get enough help from Leroy Kelly and Garry Collins. Browns won preseason game 42-14.

Philadelphia 24, New Orleans 21—Eagles are hurting but Saints already have beaten them once 31-24. Eagles' injury-riddled defensive backfield open invitation for ary Cuozzo. But Philadelphia has way of snapping out of it at Franklin Field. Anything can happen.

St. Louis 20, Chicago 17—Cards have Johnny Roland to run at Bears, giving Jim Hart a chance to exploit passing game. Bears racked up Fran Tarkenton last week but Cards have superior offensive line, despite off day against Steelers.

Green Bay 28, San Francisco 14—Last Green Bay home game until Dec. 17. San Francisco in three-game losing slump get Dave Parks back. How many can Travis Williams run back this week?

Dallas 35, Washington 28—Another wild one. Cowboys seem to be having troubles getting untracked despite two straight wins. Redskins could upset with return of Charley Taylor. Cowboys just did eke out 17-14 margin Oct. 8. Don Maynard still rusty. Overall class says Dallas.

New York 28, Pittsburgh 27—Giants get edge on return to form of Fran Tarkenton after two-game slump. Steelers at full strength are coming on, smearing Cards' passer five times and intercepting three in 14-14 tie. Don't watch unless you have a strong heart.

AFL

Buffalo 21, Denver 14—Buffalo just did win 17-16 in first meeting Oct. 8 but Bills have beaten Chargers Sunday and Oakland Broncos nine straight since 1962 next Thursday. Chiefs must and Denver has lost nine in a clump down on Dick Post and row. Jack Tensi almost pulled it out for the Broncos last week. No Houston has the bye this offense either side. Lou Saban's week.

Granite Shortage

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — A Salem paving contractor confirms that it has come to the point that you can hardly get any granite in the Granite State.

The demand for New Hampshire's famous natural product so exceeds the supply that Andrew S. Donovan, vice president of the Manchester Paving Co., Inc. of Hooksett, submitted to the town of Salem recently a sidewalk contract with a stipulation he would not be able to put in the specified granite curbing until next spring.

It isn't that there is any shortage of granite in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts, quaries," Donovan said. "The cutters just can't keep up with the demand. As fast as they cut it, contractors are buying it up." Donovan says the heavy demand for granite is due mostly to the unprecedented construction of interstate highways and bridges.

The earliest recorded use of wallpaper was in 1481, when the King of France commissioned a painting to be done on 50 rolls of paper and hung on his walls.

Granite Shortage

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — A Salem paving contractor confirms that it has come to the point that you can hardly get any granite in the Granite State.

The demand for New Hampshire's famous natural product so exceeds the supply that Andrew S. Donovan, vice president of the Manchester Paving Co., Inc. of Hooksett, submitted to the town of Salem recently a sidewalk contract with a stipulation he would not be able to put in the specified granite curbing until next spring.

It isn't that there is any shortage of granite in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts quarries," Donovan said. "The cutters just can't keep up with the demand. As fast as they cut it, contractors are buying it up." Donovan says the heavy demand for granite is due mostly to the unprecedented construction of interstate highways and bridges.

The earliest recorded use of wallpaper was in 1481, when the King of France commissioned a painting to be done on 50 rolls of paper and hung on his walls.

Dear Abby

Lawyer's Advice Needed

By Abigail Van Buren
(© 1967 by Chicago Tribune - N. Y. New Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My son married a girl he had known a very short time. They met last summer in Europe on a college student tour. (She's an American.)

My sisters gave this girl a beautiful bridal shower, and my husband's family as well as my own gave the couple some very expensive wedding presents. After living together for 20 days, this "bride" left her husband and filed for divorce. Her only reason is that he refused to use a deodorant!

She didn't send one thank you note for her shower gifts, or her wedding gifts, and she won't give me the list of gifts so I can thank them. (I doubt if she even made one.)

But the biggest problem is getting the gifts back from our side of the family. Neither she nor her mother will answer my letters or telephone calls. So what can we do? INCENSED teacher was very cooperative; that way, no one (but the teacher) knew of the party in advance, so there was no need to bring a birthday gift (which many could not afford, anyway).

DEAR INCENSED: Talk to your lawyer. Too bad your son didn't work up more of a sweat over this girl before he married her.

No cleaning up afterwards, and no frayed nerves. Good idea? MRS. SMITH

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars—

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Ideas appear plentiful. But don't try too much at once. Building slowly today can make for lasting relationship. Avoid making promises you can't keep. No extravagance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Good news indicated in romance department. You could commit yourself to action for which you are not prepared. Realize this. Exercise necessary precautions. Message clear tonight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle moves up. Means you can be at right place with right person. Excellent for putting forth novel ideas. Be original, independent. Take the lead. You shine at social function.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Breakthrough indicated. You spread influence. Humor, social event figure prominently. Special group, party, meeting could serve as springboard to success.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Circumstances create emotional accidents. Means you could be wrongly accused of switching affections. Might be costly unless error is immediately corrected. Act accordingly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on career, ambition, specific accomplishment. You get results. People with ability to promote you make appearance. Be ready. Take advantage of opportunity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get help in unobtrusive manner. Means someone behind the scenes works in your behalf. Let those at a distance know where you stand. Express yourself in clear manner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): People who work with you seek personal contact. Be receptive.

Fine for entertaining at home. Best to stick to familiar course. Means don't go too far afield.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Obtain hint from LIBRA message. Realize that real advance is made today, minus hoopla. Means quiet progress is better than sensational claims. Know this. Respond accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Basic responsibilities highlighted today. Not wise to put off routine tasks. Dig in and get essentials completed. Then you find evening a time for genuine pleasure.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emotional pattern due for change. Intense feeling finds outlet for expression. You get information which enables you to complete mission, project. Significant day.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Windfall due through new approach. Could involve sales appeal, unique possession or property. Lead rather than follow. Pioneer rather than imitate. Day is then productive.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are attracted to medicine, anxious to help those in difficulty. Sometimes your methods are too forceful. Learn to utilize diplomacy. Then you attract friends and win love. Upcoming cycle points to an end of deception and puts you on more solid financial ground.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for GEMINI, CANCER. Special word to CAPRICORN: remember resolutions concerning work, recreation and health.

Marshall Miles has written a new book called "Marshall Miles Teaches Logical Bridge." In this book he teaches a very intelligent couple how to play good bridge. They start by knowing nothing about the game but they learn fast. Here is how he teaches one of the most important defensive signals.

He says, "West opens the queen of spades. South wins with the king and leads the ten of diamonds. How must East defend?"

The answer is, "He has to win the second diamond. Otherwise South can win two spades, one heart, two diamonds and four clubs."

He asks, "Doesn't East take a chance if he wins the second diamond? Suppose South has the last missing diamond?"

"I suppose there is some way for West to show that he started with three diamonds. Is there?"

"Yes," says Marshall, "There is a general defensive convention that a defender should show an odd or even number of cards in a suit by playing high-low (echoing) with an even number and low-high with an odd number. He doesn't do this all the time but only when it is more important to inform his partner than his opponent."

"I see," replies the student. "West plays the deuce of diamonds first and when he follows to the second diamond, East knows that West started with three diamonds. If West started with two diamonds he would play high-low, and East would duck the second diamond as well as the first."

Note that if South had held one less spade and one more diamond, the defense would be helpless anyway because South could take the two diamonds and go after clubs; but if South held three diamonds and only four clubs the double duck would beat him.

DEAR MRS. SMITH: Great. If your child's birthday doesn't happen to fall on a week-end, holiday or during summer, Easter or Christmas vacation.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going steady with a girl I'll call "Dotty" for about a year, but there is another girl I like better. I don't want to hurt Dotty's feelings, but I would like to get out of going steady with her so I can openly date this other girl.

Dotty is a very nervous girl and every time I have even hinted at breaking up, she gets sick. I would appreciate any help you can give me. I am 22 and Dotty is 19. STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: I feel very sorry for Dotty, but I feel sorry for you if you continue to go with her because you haven't the courage to break it up. Level with her! And the sooner the better. Dotty may get sick, but she'll get over it. Take my advice before you find yourself married to a woman who "gets sick" every time she doesn't get her own way.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "BAFFLED" who quit having birthday parties for her children because the mothers would bring their children, and instead of going home, they would stay for the party, too, which meant having more uninvited guests than invited ones. Here is how I solved that problem:

On the day of my child's birthday I would take ice cream and cupcakes to school and treat the whole class. The high-low, and East would duck the second diamond as well as the first.

Note that if South had held one less spade and one more diamond, the defense would be helpless anyway because South could take the two diamonds and go after clubs; but if South held three diamonds and only four clubs the double duck would beat him.

NEW YORK (AP) — There was a trade rumor recently that a variety show called "popendipity" featuring popular music and musicians was a strong candidate as a replacement series for one or another of ABC's midseason drop-outs.

It failed to make the schedule, but the pilot show was used Thursday night as the emergency replacement for the Carol Channing special. The latter has been postponed for at least two weeks pending the end of a technicians' union strike against the network.

An Edited Tape

The hour program consisted of an edited tape made at a performance in a Rhode Island tent theater last summer. It was something less than satisfying—particularly because we have seen many of the artists—soloists Astrud Gilberto and Duffy

A man was telling about the harrowing experience he had out West during his vacation trip. Hal — It was terrible! Indians to the left of me, Indians to the right, Indians to the rear, Indians in front, Indians everywhere closing in on me. Cal — Whew, what did you do? Hal — What could I do? I bought a blanket.

One reason that Americans won't go Communist is that when they hear the shout "Workers Arise" they think it's time for the coffee break.

A pretty young blonde going to night school looked surprised when the English teacher said, Professor Brown — Now, tomorrow evening we will take up syntax.

Miss Lewis — Oh, gosh, if they are going to collect that, I'll never be able to pay the tuition.

A bunch of boys were holding an all-night poker party in a hotel room. As it progressed the revelry increased. Finally, at about 3 a. m. a weary guest in the next room started to pound on the wall.

"Well, I must say," shouted one of the merry-makers indignantly, "that this is certainly a heck of a time to be hanging pictures!"
